25 MILLION SPENT IN YEAR BY POWER INDUSTRY FOR 'GOODWILL ADS'

Further Disclosures by Federal Trade Board on Methods Used for Getting Publicity Favorable to Private Operation.

"PUBLIC PAYS THE EXPENSE"

"Ghost Writers" Employed for Prominent Citizens—How Newspapers Were Helped Financially by the Utilities.

By RAYMOND F. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—In its second report to the Senate on the investigation of the privately-owned electric and gas industries, the Federal Trade Commission today described the methods used by the so-called power trust to gain favorable publicity for private operation and condemnation of municipal and Government ownership.

These methods, the report said, included the expenditure of millions of dollars annually for "goodwill" advertising, employment of "ghost writers" for prominent citizens, the financing of newspapers by power interests, and the reporting of news services which furnished information to the press favorable to utility interests.

The report quoted at length from the propaganda articles and speeches by power officials and associates which have been collected by the commission during the last year of its investigation.

"The record," the report said, "is a senseless outpouring of charges by outsiders or hostile witnesses."

The press and the schools, the report said, were the main channels of the propaganda campaign.

The report cited testimony by power officials that the public utility advertising reached as high as $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 a year.

In addition, the report said, various organizations issued and circulated large quantities of propaganda pamphlets, and released to the press, for free, copies of these state organizations.

The report related how the utilities organized State information bureaus usually under the direction of former newspaper men, to obtain the proper approach to both news and editorial divisions of the press.

These State offices, the report said, were so successful in getting thousands of columns of favorable publicity that they were not to boast of their accomplishments because they would get the name of "free state grabbers."

As an example of the effectiveness of these state organizations, the report quoted the boast of the Illinois Committee on Public Utilities, who in reporting on the work of the year, said: "We have secured 80 per cent of the papers subscribed for have carried more or less of the matter in the committee. It has been carried that even in the case of papers which were inclined to hostility, as evidenced by newspapermen, has been softened very decidedly."

The New England Bureau of Public Service Information reported that of the most interesting and valuable results we have so far obtained has been the number of articles published in many of the leading newspapers in New England where our material has been printed in the editorial columns or taken as a text for feature articles.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS HAVE $9,200,000,000 IN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES

Third of Total Loans and Investments Now in U. S. Issues Compared With 12.6 Per Cent Four Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Concentration of about 33-1/3 per cent of the total loans and investments of member banks of the Federal Reserve System in obligations of the United States Government is indicated in the most recent bank statements.

The percentage of Government holdings by banks varies, with New York City banks in the lead with 45 per cent of their funds concentrated in Government obligations, contrasted with 13 per cent in the fall of 1930. Country banks now have about 25 per cent of their funds so invested compared with 9.2 per cent, while the investment of all member banks in Government securities has reached $9,200,000,000, or approximately 33-1/3 per cent of their total loans and investments, compared with holdings of $3,100,000,000, or about 12.6 per cent in the fall of 1930.

The 12 Federal Reserve banks alone held $2,430,174,000 in Government obligations on Nov. 14, which represented about 30 per cent of their total assets. In September, 1930, their investment in Government securities was around $600,000,000, or less than 15 per cent of the total assets.

The combined holdings of Federal Reserve and member banks now stands at roughly $11,600,000,000, or about 43 per cent of the total debt of the Federal Government, which has increased from about $20,585,000,000 as of Feb. 28, 1933, to $26,546,104,000 on Nov. 15, 1934.

One of the unusual features of financing operations undertaken by the Treasury in the last two years has been its ability gradually to cut down the interest rates paid on Government debt, while at the same time increasing the debt at the rate of approximately $291,000,000 a month.

A recent survey shows that during the 20-1/2 months from Feb. 28, 1933, to Nov. 15, 1934, the Treasury Department issued a total of $11,703,236,000 of new securities of all types, both long and short terms, on which the average interest rate was 2.51 per cent of the proceeds, $5,741,442,000 was used in refunding operations and paying off securities maturing in that period the average interest rate on which was 3.33 per cent, thus effecting a reduction of more than 1/2 of 1 per cent on nearly one-half of the new securities.

The publishers of the Boise Valley Herald in Middleton, Idaho, not only refused to join the NRA, but ridiculed its purposes, caricatured the Blue Eagle and defied the NRA to prosecute them in the courts.

The publishers called the NRA "institutionalized racketeering."

Louis A. Boas, chairman of the Idaho Code Authority, demanded payment of the assessment fees some time ago and threatened Federal prosecution. The newspaper, in refusing to pay the fee, gives its reasons in part as follows:

"We did not at any time sign any agreement or contract of any kind or nature, that was connected with the code or with the NRA. Instead of putting up the Blue Eagle as an emblem of compliance we caricatured it and thereby challenged the onus of disfavor and the penalty of popular boycott, that was officially invoked as punishment for those who were conscientious objectors against a regimentation that they regard as both expensive and stupid."

"We make no pretense of knowing to just what extent this NRA thing is a statutory mandate and to just what extent it is a personal contract, and we are not sure that anyone else knows. It seems to us that... any reasonable interpretation would hold that those who openly and above board defied and lampooned the proposition, and who suffered the boycott that was thus challenged, cannot be reasonably forced to pay for a value they did not receive."

"This is our position. We are painfully aware that we are not financially able to fight this thing through the courts, but as Wendell Phillips, a revolutionist of a former day, said: 'It is the glory of free men that the tyrant unjust laws under their feet.'"

The board receives notice of compliance within that time the case will be referred to the NRA compliance division and the Justice Department for court action.

The board found that two active union officers at the company's Coney Island shop had been given supervisory positions which led to their withdrawal from the union, that union members on the night shift had been transferred to the day shift where, at the time, the union was not so strong, and that members of the union had been questioned about union activity.

IDAHO PAPER INVITES PROSECUTION BY NRA

Denounces "Institutionalized Racketeering" and Caricatures Blue Eagle.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Efforts of the NRA to collect assessed code fees from the publishers of a rural weekly in Idaho have failed to date and the proprietors invite prosecution.

ISLAND EMPRESS TOLD OF MAN HURT WITH A BULLET

Baroness Eloise Bouquet Writes of Injury to "Man Named Arends" in Galapagos Islands.

INVESTIGATOR WILL SAIL TOMORROW

Capt. Hancock Gets Letter on Eve of Setting Out to Investigate Finding of Bodies on Waterless Isle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 22.—Hint of a tragic mishap in the Galapagos Island home of the Baroness Eloise Bouquet de Wagner is contained in a letter from her received by Capt. G. Allen Hancock, Los Angeles explorer, who will sail for Marchena Island tomorrow to try to solve the mystery surrounding the finding of two bodies there.

The Baroness sent Hancock a large order for materials, including several bolts of pink silk. Later she canceled the order, writing:

"An accident has happened. My score of suffering seems not yet complete. A young man named Arends who works and lives with us is hurt in the stomach with a bullet."

The bodies found on the island were reported Saturday by Capt. Manuel Rodriguez, skipper of a tuna boat. Rodriguez made a brief examination of the bodies and left them where he found them. He radioed descriptions to Los Angeles.

"One body, lying on its back under a skirt, was large, about six feet tall," Rodriguez reported. "The front of the head was bald, but there was a small tuft of brown hair in the back. The head was resting on a bundle of clothes. A light colored coat was over the body, beside which lay blue dungarees. Neither body had shoes."

"The other body was on its side about 50 feet from the skirt. It was five and one-half feet high, built and had thick blonde hair about four inches long. It wore a brown sweater with a light brown vest covering that. A coat hanging from the vest was about 20 feet from the body, which also had on dungaree pants cut or torn off at the knees."

"As the bodies were found in the late afternoon, and we shovelled off for Isabella that night, a thorough inspection was not made."

Probably the bodies were those of men, though it was not possible at the time to be sure. Capt. Rodriguez supposed death was due to hunger and thirst, for Marchena is little more than a waterless rock 160 miles from the nearest island, Capt. Hancock said: "It is my belief that the dead men are Arthur Rudolph Lorenz, formerly of Paris, and a Norwegian sailor named Nuggerood. The description of the smaller man fits Lorenz."

"He was a member of the colony over which Baroness Eloise Bouquet de Wagner sought to rule as an Empress on Charles Island, another of the Galapagos archipelago."

Capt. Hancock expects to anchor off Marchena within 10 days after sailing. He is taking a party of scientists to the South Pacific for research work.

The Baroness de Wagner and a friend, Robert Phillips, disappeared from Charles Island several months ago. Their present whereabouts are not known here. The descriptions of the bodies do not fit them.

Hint of Something Strange.
Capt. Hancock has with him a letter from Dr. Friedrich Ritter, German nudist, hinting of something strange in affairs in the islands. Dr. Ritter and Frau Dore Strauch Koerwein have lived in their "Garden of Eden" on Charles Island since 1929.

When Capt. Hancock visited the islands early this year he took from the Ecuadorian mainland some officials who wanted to investigate conditions and deport the "Empress" if necessary. But the Baroness promised not to call herself Empress any more and it was decided not to deport her. A few months later the Baroness and Phillips disappeared.

ROBBERS' WOMAN PAL SHOOTS TWO AND RESCUES HIM

Wounds Collinsville Filling Station Attendant and Youth Who Had Disarmed Holdup Man.

NEITHER VICTIM SERIOUSLY HURT

Raider's "Pretty Blonde" Companion Drives Up to Pumps and Opens Fire Without Warning.

A young woman with a rifle rescued her companion last night from a Collinsville filling station where he had been captured when attempting a holdup, and fled with him in an automobile under fire after she had wounded two of his captors.

Delbert Richardson, attendant at the filling station, was shot in the leg, and 19-year-old Elmer Barbeau, who had helped him in the capture, suffered a glancing bullet wound in the head. Neither was hurt seriously, physicians said.

Richardson, Barbeau and two other young men, Leland Kreider, 19, and Fred Randant, 16, were in the station on U. S. Highway No. 40 at Vandalla street, listening to a radio program, when the robber, a sunburned young man in a tan jacket and dark trousers, entered with his hat pulled low and ordered Richardson to "Get your money out."

"I haven't got much money here," Richardson answered. "I said, 'Get your money out,'" the robber repeated. Then he asked: "This is a company-owned station, isn't it?"

"No, it's leased," said Richardson. "Well," the young man ordered, "get your dough out anyway." Richardson pulled a dollar bill out of one pocket and the robber, who held a .45-caliber automatic pistol in his right hand, snarled, "Gimme the rest of it."

Slowly Richardson fished out four half-dollars from another pocket. "All right," the robber continued, "now gimme that money changer you're wearing." Richardson handed it to him, and as the robber took it, Richardson hit him in the jaw and grabbed his right arm.

They struggled for the weapon and it was discharged several times. Kreider and Randant dived out of a window. Richardson and the robber fled to the floor and rolled about, fighting for possession of the pistol. Barbeau picked up a heavy funnel and pounded the robber's forehead with it. Blood streamed down the robber's face.

Fight Is Resumed.
Richardson finally got the pistol and the young robber stopped struggling. "I give up," he said, and rose to his feet. Richardson rose and as he did so, the robber dashed for the door. Richardson tackled him and the young man surrendered again.

When he rose the second time, he cried, "Oh honey," four times. A neighbor, John Merlie, came in and said, "Hold him until I get my rifle and then somebody can go for the police."

As Merlie left, a young woman, described by Richardson and the others as a "pretty blonde about 20 years old," drove into the station in a Ford sedan with California license, and smiling broadly, stopped beside a gasoline pump. Richardson started toward the car, thinking it was a customer.

The young woman raised a heavy-caliber rifle from the floor beside her and fired at him.

Richardson jumped behind a gasoline pump and Barbeau, who had been guarding the robber, dashed behind another pump. The young woman fired four more shots; struck Richardson in the leg with one; shattered the glass top of the pump with another, showering him with gasoline; hit Barbeau in the head with a slug that had ricocheted from the pump behind which he was hiding, and planted the last one in a gasoline hose, two inches from Richardson's head.

The young robber, in the meantime, had dashed to the sedan. He climbed in and the woman drove away at high speed, as Merlie came running across the street with his rifle. Merlie fired at the automobile and the robber fired several shots in return before the car turned a corner and was lost to sight. Merlie said one of his shots shattered the back window of the sedan and another hit the body of the car.

In his haste to escape the robber lost his hat, which was purchased in Fort Wayne, Ind., and his pistol, an Army automatic with the registration numbers filed off.

LEAGUE INQUIRY URGED IN MURDER OF KING

Yugoslav Complaint Charges Marseilles Assassination Was Plotted in Hungary.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Nov. 22.—Yugoslavia filed a formal complaint against Hungary today and asked the League of Nations Council to investigate the assassinations of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France as acts calculated to disturb international peace.

M. Fotich, the Yugoslav delegate to the League, sent a letter to J. A. C. Avenol, Secretary-General, requesting that the matter be placed on the Council agenda for discussion.

The Yugoslav delegate alleged: "The investigation into the Marseilles assassinations brought to light the fact that they were prepared on Hungarian soil by a band of international terrorists."

The letter said that a memorandum detailing the police investigations in several countries will be forwarded to the League later.

Yugoslavia's complaint, the letter said, is made under Article XI, paragraph 2, of the League covenant, which says: "It is the friendly right of each member of the League to bring to the attention of the Assembly or the Council any circumstance whatever affecting international relations which threatens to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations on which peace depends."

THREE 'BLOOD BROTHERHOOD' LEADERS IN JAPAN GET LIFE

Organization Held Responsible for Two Assassinations; 11 Others Sentenced.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Nov. 22.—The Tokyo District Court today passed sentences of life imprisonment on three leaders of the "blood brotherhood" which was held responsible for two assassinations in 1932.

Tadashi Konuma, charged with killing former Finance Minister Junnosuke Inouye; Goro Hishinuma, accused of killing Baron Takuma Dan, managing director of the Mitsui interests, and Nishio Inoue, alleged leader of the brotherhood, were those sentenced.

Eiji Furuchi, Inouye's chief lieutenant, was given 15 years in prison and 10 others got sentences ranging from three to 15 years.

INSULL HAS COURAGE OF A LION, HIS LAWYER SAYS

In Closing Argument, Attorney Makes Sentimental Appeal—Utility Man Fighting Only 'for Honor and Good Name.'

SOLVENCY OF FIRM COMPARED TO U. S.

Counsel Explains Difference Between 'Wash' and Matched Sales—Asserts Government Has "Exaggerated 100 Per Cent."

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The jurors in the Insull mail fraud trial were asked by defense attorneys today to remember the difference between "wash sales" and stock market operations that were simply "matched sales."

Attorney Jay Fred Reeve began the fourth day of closing arguments with a plea filled with figures and market phrases. His defense of what Insull companies did in the market followed pleas yesterday which went into advanced accountancy and what constituted a crime.

"The prosecutors have exaggerated about 100 per cent," said Reeve, who represents four officers of the Utilities Securities Co., which the Government alleges bought and sold stock of the Corporation Securities Co. to keep it active on the market.

"They told you there were 4000 'wash sales' in the allotment units' Corporation Securities Co. first issued," he continued. "If you remember that the average transaction is 100 shares, this becomes 46 transactions—one every two weeks. That's not enough to affect the market."

"It is difficult to answer this case, because the Government has changed its position time after time."

Samuel Insull heard himself described as having the "courage of a lion" in the argument of the defense yesterday. The description was given by Attorney John J. Healy.

"In 50 years before the bar," said Attorney Healy, "I've never seen a more heroic exhibition than that old man (Insull) now on the rim of his dying day, fighting with the courage of a lion for the only thing left—his honor and good name. All the charts in the world can't wipe out his record of a $15,000,000 personal loss."

Contradicting the Government's contention that the Corporation Securities Co. was insolvent September, 1931, eight months before it ceased business, Healy argued that he could "prove the United States Government insolvent by the same test."

Its physical assets consist of airships, arsenals, forests and a post office, he said. "If liquidated today they would not pay 1 per cent of its thirty thousand million dollar funded debt."

Attorney William Haight, representing Charles R. Whitworth, former auditor of Corporation Securities, argued that if the Government's theories of accounting of the company's books were valid there was still no proof of criminality on the part of Insull and his former associates.

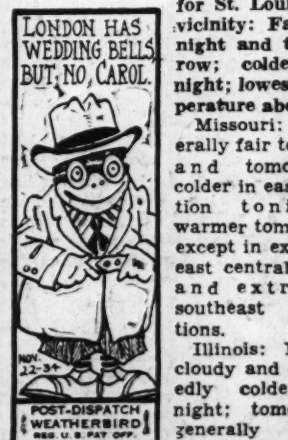

Defense of Field.
Stanley Field's attorney in an attack on the prosecutor charged they had attempted to cloud a life of high public service by bringing the Chicago business man into the trial.

Attorney Frederic Burnham shouted that "not so much as a picture" had been produced to link Field with the charges that investors in Corporation Securities were swindled.

Field, a nephew of the late Marshall Field, Chicago merchant, "retired in 1919 to devote his life to the public," the attorney declared. He sketched Field's war service as overseas supply manager for the Red Cross, told of hospitals and museums the white-haired defendant had fostered, and cried: "Like a bolt from the blue, there descended charges on Feb. 27, 1933, that he was a thief, a rascal, a crook and a fraud. What motive would Mr. Field have for cheating the public he had determined to spend his life serving?"

"Good Deeds Protect Him."
A director of Insull's Corporation Securities Co., Field approved one of the financial statements the Government contends was falsified.

MRS. VANDERBILT TO CONTINUE FIGHT FOR HER DAUGHTER

Not Satisfied With Compromise Order Awarding Custody of Gloria to Mrs. Whitney.

CHILD TO BE WITH AUNT MOST OF TIME

Next Move Uncertain—Order Stipulates That Little Heiress Be Reared in Mother's Catholic Faith.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—As predicted by counsel, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt is not satisfied with Supreme Court Justice John F.
Carew's decision yesterday that she must share custody of her 10-year-old heiress daughter, Gloria, with the child's paternal aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

The order makes the aunt legal custodian of the child and gives her the child five days a week. The mother is to have her daughter on Sundays and Sundays and during July and August.

"Such a compromise" is unacceptable to her, Mrs. Vanderbilt said today. Still confined to bed since testifying before Justice Carew, Mrs. Vanderbilt announced through her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Tow Jr., that she would fight the case. Justice Carew did not rule on Mrs. Vanderbilt's application for a writ of habeas corpus to gain possession of the child, but declared the child to be a ward of the court until she is 21.

To Be Reared in Catholic Faith.
Nathan Burkan, counsel to Mrs.
Vanderbilt, announced today that the mother's first definite step to appeal from Justice Carew's order would be to ask the Justice either to dissolve or sustain the writ of habeas corpus. He added that in a day or two he would attempt to have the court's order altered in such a manner that an immediate appeal can be taken to the appellate division.

She is going to see that Mrs.
Vanderbilt is not deprived of her constitutional right to appeal," Burkan said.

In awarding the child to Mrs.
Whitney, Justice Carew directed that the child be reared in her mother's faith, Catholicism. Mrs.
Whitney, an Episcopalian, said she would comply with the order, "not only to the letter, but in spirit."

Mrs. Whitney said she intended to transfer her niece as a "thoroughbred" to her mother's faith, N. Y.
American. Mrs. Whitney said, "but I'm not waving a flag."

Mrs. Whitney said the child will be 11 Feb. 20, had shown an interest in art. Mrs. Whitney is a sculptress and art patron. Asked what she would do if the child objected to her scheduled visits with her mother, as she is said to have done in the past, Mrs. Whitney replied:
"I'll face those things when they come up."

Mrs. Whitney said that if the child should ever express a preference to return to her mother, and the court will permit, she would have no prejudice against satisfying such a wish.

Justice Carew in his ruling ordered that Mrs. Whitney continue the child in attendance at the Greenwich School at East 93d St., and "shall cause her to live in a home suitable to her fortune at her country home in Old Westbury."

Justice Carew said:
"That the life led by this infant
from the death of her mother, Mrs.
Bald Vanderbilt until June, 1932, was entirely and in every way unsuitable, unfit, improper, calculated to destroy her health and negligent of her moral, spiritual and mental education, and that it so resulted in the discomfort, detriment, damage and injury of the infant."

Then he added that the life lived by the child since June, 1932, when Mrs. Whitney assumed her custody, has been fit, suitable and appropriate and has resulted in a greater improvement of the infant's physical and mental health and tended to promote its best welfare, comfort and happiness."

The ruling does not affect the child's estate of more than $2,500-00. It is supervised by two guardians, but Mrs. Vanderbilt has an interest in the estate. Pending in Surrogate's Court.
Asking that she be named guardian.
Last year the court awarded her $100 a year for the child's support.

Letter Mailed in New York.
Inspector Harold King, in command of Nassau County detectives, had the threatening letter was mailed in New York City, on East 145th street, Nov. 17. The letter was signed "Catholic Community," and was painted by hand in blue and plain white paper.

The substance of the letter threatened to do bodily harm to Gloria, unless she was returned to her mother, he said.
King said the letter mentioned
Mrs. Whitney and Justice
Carew, and added the reason given for demanding the child be returned to her mother was that the mother believed that no child should be separated from its natural other.

visit Pierce's son, Thomas M.
Pierce, at his home at 21 Vandeventer place.

The two men, the high command of the fast-dwindling Confederate soldiers, are here not for a parade nor to talk about the war. Tomorrow night they will don their Confederate uniforms and stand in the receiving line at the debut ball of Pierce's granddaughter, Roberta Pierce, at the St. Louis Country Club.

Since Pierce was elected commander last year the two have been almost constant companions. Lee has been adjutant-general of the veterans for 12 years.

Last December they presented a plaque to President Roosevelt in the White House—"the only time the Confederate uniform has ever gone in there"—which pledged the loyalty of the Confederate veterans to the President.

Last Saturday they were at Nashville when the President went there to eat breakfast at the Hermitage, Andrew Jackson's old home. After the turkey hash, and grits, and whipped muffs, the President went out to "greet the best people of Nashville."

First he spotted Pierce and Lee, standing near the Hermitage. He turned to them and said, "I recognize you generals. And may God bless the Confederate soldiers." The generals could do nothing but smile and salute.

Both men are alert, active, and jovial. When Lee arrived at the Pierce home yesterday he gladly took a toddy "to warm" himself.
Lee smokes cigarettes almost continuously. Pierce hasn't smoked since some Negroes at the family plantation gave him a black stogie when he was young.

Both Live in Tennessee.
Pierce lives in Union City, Tenn., and Lee in Nashville. Both enlisted in the Confederate army when they were very young. Pierce after Union soldiers had burned his father's home and "there was nothing else to do." Lee emerged as a Sergeant, Pierce as a "high private in the rear rank."

After the war Pierce read law and in 1882 he became a Congressman, remaining in Washington for 18 years. During some of those years Lee was in the British navy, having enlisted just in time to be in on the bombardment of Alexandria in July, 1882.

Before that Lee was for some years in St. Louis, where he worked for the Skinker and Skinner's in the composing room of the Post-Dispatch. Until this day he has carried his make-up rule with him as a good luck piece. At that time he lived on downtown Olive street and he thought he ought to go and look up his old land.

In the old Vandeventer place home the two seemed like part of its makeup. It is a home of their period. Young faces were alien to it.

300-AN-HOUR WORK RELIEF MINIMUM ABANDONED

Federal Board Rules Prevailing Wage in Area Affected

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Relief Administration today abandoned its 300-cents-an-hour minimum wage for work relief. Hereafter, it was said, the factor in governing work relief wages will be the rates prevailing in the communities where the work is done.

An order rescinding all rules and regulations governing work relief wages has been sent to state administrators by Harry L. Hopkins, the Federal Administrator.

Responsibility for determining wages in the future, it was said, had been placed with local communities representing labor, business and the local relief administration.
These committees have been functioning for some time.

The new order to result in an increase in the number of persons on work relief.

PROSECUTOR ANDERSON SHOWS 'SATISFACTORY IMPROVEMENT'

Temperature Normal, Drainage From Infection Decreased, Attending Surgeon Says.

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County, injured in an assault Oct. 9, has been showing "satisfactory progressive improvement," the attending surgeon at County Hospital said today. His condition has remained serious.

The amount of drainage from an infection of the fractured left leg has decreased considerably, an encouraging sign, the surgeon said.
"We dressed his leg today," the surgeon added, "and changed the splint yesterday, making him more comfortable. His temperature is normal."

$2292 TAX ON FETTING ESTATE

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 22.—
The State Treasurer's office received an inheritance tax check for $2292 today on the estate of Catherine Fetting, who died Jan. 2, in St. Louis.

Her net estate amounted to $172-
328. The gross amount was $185-
836. Most of the estate was left to charity. An adopted daughter, Margaret Wackher of Chicago, received $41,742.

TWO BOY ROBBERS CAPTURED, BOAST OF 12 HOLDUPS

Youths Who Refer to Selves as "Crime, Inc.," Seized After Theft of $7
From Motorist.

Lured into crime by the false glory they attributed to a pair of unsuccessful holdup men, Charles Sage and Clifford Juber, 18-year-old Chicago youths, leaned on the bars in a cell in the Laclede Avenue Police Station today and talked with apparent gratification of the prospect of imprisonment in the penitentiary which awaits them.

They were arrested at 6:40 p. m. yesterday by three detectives after they had held up a motorist at Fourteenth and Olive streets and had robbed him of $7 and his automobile. Readily they admitted that it was the fourth such holdup of motorists at automatic stop signals they had committed here since last Tuesday, and that they had committed eight similar robberies in Chicago.

Theoretically they referred to themselves as "Crime, Inc.," and as Juber & Sage, holder-uppers.
Without apparent realization of the true meaning of imprisonment, Sage told a Post-Dispatch reporter:
"We're going up to the big house to get our higher education, and when we get out we'll be big league criminals," while his smaller partner, grinning vacuously, nodded agreement.

How Youths Were Caught.
Their arrest followed the report of Edward Barstow, an insurance man of 5129 Westminster place, that he had been robbed of $7 by two youths who had entered his car at the traffic signal at Fourteenth street and had put him out at Twenty-second street.

Three detectives, answering the call, noticed Juber and Sage getting out of an Olive street car at Leffingwell avenue, followed the car, and arrested the pair when they alighted at Eighth street. Sage had a 22-caliber blank cartridge pistol in his pocket. It was not loaded and was without a spring, so it could not have been fired. Juber carried a 32-caliber revolver, also unloaded.

Barstow identified them. His automobile was recovered at Twenty-second and St. Charles streets.
The prisoners also admitted they had robbed Charles O'Neill, 3647 Page boulevard, of $3 and a pair of jams, in the last of which Weiss was asked: "Did you get that letter?"
She replied "No." The letter was the one bearing the incorrect address and had not yet been delivered.

The first telephone call was made on the afternoon after Weiss
was abducted. The caller said:
"We've got Bill. Start digging," and immediately broke the connection.

Oct. 30, the first letter was received, believed to have been written by Weiss. It urged Mrs.
Weiss to "do exactly as these boys
want."

PROTEST MEETING AGAINST CUT IN GASOLINE MARGIN

Union Officer Says Reduction in Gross Profit to Independent Stations Means Lower Wages.

A mass meeting to protest against the proposed reduction of about 25 percent in the gross profit of gasoline to independent filling station operators will be held at 10 o'clock tonight at Electrical Workers' Hall, Boyle and Gibson avenues. The meeting is sponsored by the Gasoline Service Station & Warehouse Employees' Union No. 18,362.

The proposed marginal cut is a rebuff against President Roosevelt's plan to increase purchasing power, said Paul de Hoog, secretary of the union, in announcing the meeting.
"The major oil companies want to reduce the independent dealers' margin of profit from 4 to 3 cents, which amounts to a 25 per cent reduction in wages. We believe this is a deliberate attempt to force the small gasoline merchandiser out of business. Our union will fight to prevent any attempt to cut the margin."

SEARCH GOES ON FOR PHILADELPHIA MAN'S KIDNAPERS

No Arrests Imminent, Says Federal Agent Investigating Seizure Oct. 26 of William Weiss.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—
Search for the kidnapers of William Weiss, who police fear was killed when his family failed to meet $100,000 ransom demands, continued today.

Except to say that no arrests were imminent, R. George Harvey, head of the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation here, declined to comment on the case, to which he was summoned Sunday after Weiss' disappearance had been kept a family secret for 24 days.

Harvey would neither affirm nor deny published reports that Federal agents in New York had been asked to look for a man said to have been paid $25,000 of the requested ransom money at Wilkes-Barre.

Weiss' family has not heard from a telephone call was received Nov.
6. Weiss was seized in the driveway of his home on Oct. 26.

The abduction was witnessed from an upper story window by a woman employed as nurse for Weiss' three children. She said three men pushed him into a "big shiny sedan" and sped off. The ransom demands followed.

To bear out the theory that Weiss may have been slain, some authorities pointed to a letter, delivered of which was delayed a week because of incorrect address. The letter, believed by the Weiss family to be in his handwriting and intended for his former partner, carried instructions concerning the payment of ransom.

Contact was established by the kidnapers in one letter and in a series of five telephone calls, in the last of which Weiss was asked: "Did you get that letter?"
She replied "No." The letter was
the one bearing the incorrect address and had not yet been delivered.

The first telephone call was made on the afternoon after Weiss
was abducted. The caller said:
"We've got Bill. Start digging," and immediately broke the connection.

Oct. 30, the first letter was received, believed to have been written by Weiss. It urged Mrs.
Weiss to "do exactly as these boys
want."

PRINCESS ARRANGES VISIT TO FUTURE HOME

Marina and Prince George to Live on Belgrave Square
After Marriage.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—After a tiring day on her arrival in London, Princess Marina of Greece, who a week from today will become the bride of the Duke of Kent, who calls her "Mama," waved from a window in Buckingham Palace to a great crowd gathered at dusk yesterday, and then went to bed early.
Today she was expected to visit the Belgrave Square home where she and Prince George will live after their marriage.

Contributions ranging from a few shillings to thousands of pounds are pouring in as a result of the royal pair's request that persons wishing to give wedding presents, send donations, instead, to a fund for relief of underprivileged children of the unemployed, or another for the rebuilding of St.
George's Hospital which has stood at Hyde Park corner, one of the city's landmarks, for 200 years.

The donations have been accompanied by letters telling of the sponsors' affection and good wishes for the Prince and the Princess.
One, from a Gloucestershire village, read:

"Please accept this 2s (two shillings, about 50 cents), from a sightless woman who sends her devotion to Prince George and his Princess."

TRAIN STRIKES TRUCK IN RAIN; FOUR KILLED

Engineer Says He Blew Whistle for Crossing Near Lees Summit, Mo.

By the Associated Press.
LEES SUMMIT, Mo., Nov. 22.—Four men were killed near here late yesterday when their truck was struck by a Rock Island motor train.

The dead, all employees of the C. C. Hook Dairy Co.: Willis Williams, 18 years old, nephew of Hook and son of J. W. Williams, Lees Summit banker; Joseph Bittlebrun, 28; Otto Finzell, 31; and Theodore Cass, 30.

Engineer Allen Kadderly said he was running at the rate of 50 miles an hour in a heavy rain when the dairy truck carrying the four men appeared on the track.

Williams, Bittlebrun and Finzell were dead when Kadderly reached them after stopping the train. Cass died within a few minutes. The truck body was thrown 45 yards to the side of the track and the chassis was carried a quarter of a mile on the engine tender.

The four men were returning home from work at the Hook Dairy. The grade crossing where the accident occurred is approached through a "cut" which obscures vision from the highway, Kadderly said.

The engineer told officers he had sounded his whistle for the crossing. Mrs. E. H. Lane, who lives on a farm nearby, said she heard the whistle, followed a few seconds later by the crash. Mrs. Lane attempted to telephone for aid, but discovered a piece of the truck hurled through the air, had sev-

PERMANENT SALES TAX IS VOTED IN ILLINOIS

Both Houses Pass Gov. Horner's Bill to Eliminate Expiration Date.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 22.—Both houses of the Illinois Legislature voted yesterday for Gov. Horner's bill for a permanent sales tax. Passage in the House followed the Senate's 30-to-13 vote for Horner's plan to strike from the retail sales tax law the provision it should expire next June 30. Senator James O. Monroe of Collinsville was one of three Democrats who voted "no" in the upper chamber.

The Democratic majority in the House overrode the opposition of about 40 Republican Representatives, mostly from downstate, who agreed at a caucus to make a party issue of the sales tax. The vote was 80 to 49.

On the final House vote, 13 Republicans, all but one of them from Cook County, supported the Governor's bill.

The measure will enable the Democratic administration to avoid in 1935, as it did this year, a State tax on farms, homes and other property. The bill provides only for the striking from the 2 per cent retail sales tax law of the words which say that the act is to expire June 30, 1935.

The Senate will meet after midnight tonight to act finally on the bill and send it to the Governor. Actually two bills were passed, and although they are alike in text, one of them must be passed by both houses.

Expenditures of Utilities On Goodwill Advertising

avorable comment on the public utility problems."

Perhaps the most notable accomplishment of the state bureau was the result of good-will advertising by the utilities. It occurred in Missouri in 1924, when several editors wrote to the Redpath-Vawter Chau-laqua System, protesting against Carl D. Thompson, whom they called a Socialist, appearing on programs in their cities advocating Government ownership.

Various figures were given in the report as to the cost of utilities advertising. Paul S. Clapp, managing director of the N. E. L. A., was quoted as having told the 1927 convention of the Public Utilities Advertising Association that the advertising expenditures of the individual electric light and power companies alone had increased in five or six years from $1,500,000 to about $10,000,000 annually, and that in the same period, the use of advertising space by electrical manufacturers had increased tremendously. B. J. Mullane, for a time sectional vice-president of N. E. L. A. in charge of publicity and advertising, was quoted as having said at the 1927 convention of the American Gas Association:

"We do not resent the advertising suggestion. Indeed, we make use of it abundantly—to the aggregate amount of $25,000,000 or $30,000,000 a year for public utility advertising."

Publicity Through Speeches. Public speaking was another important means of obtaining newspaper publicity, the report said. One of the methods used was to procure the printing of local speeches as press dispatches. Paul Clapp testified that an advantage of having addresses made in the convention of the American Gas Association was that they were then printed in the press. B. E. Ling, director of the Ohio Information Bureau, recognized that "when the word is delivered in a speech before an audience, it becomes news and it is printed." He also said that, "it is not so much who speaks, where he speaks, or to whom he speaks, but the publicity back of it that gives it the force it carries."

"Procuring use of signatures of prominent persons for articles prepared by utility men was also a method of obtaining newspaper publicity by some state information bureaus," the report explained.

The director of the North and South Carolina propaganda unit was quoted as having said that "the Carolina bureau had obtained approximately 50 per cent of its total newspaper space through linking of a prominent name with a public utility argument."

Contact With Editors. Directors of state information committees, the report said, constantly urged on member companies that they make contact with editors. A favorite method of obtaining their good will was entertainment. In Texas, the report said, it became the custom to invite newspaper men to banquets and luncheons. In Missouri, newspaper men were entertained at the expense of the bureau. The Rocky Mountain Committee invited some 20 journalists to one of its annual conventions, each local manager bearing the expense of a newspaper man from his locality.

State information committees, with few exceptions, the report said, issued news bulletins weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly, sending them to all newspapers in their territory. Their mailing lists also included libraries, members of the legislature, colleges, state officers and prominent citizens. These bulletins contained critical articles on Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals, the Ontario Hydro-Electric System, municipal or Government ownership, utility taxation, rates and other matters relating to the utility industry. In Ohio the State Committee made use of the news bulletins to influence legislation whenever possible, the committee for that State reporting "the committee, through its news bulletins, the use of a full page newspaper advertisement and reprints of editorials and pamphlets, brought forcibly to the attention of the Ohio Legislature and public generally the enormous tax burdens which the utility carried."

Financing of Newspapers. The report said that about July, 1928, the International Paper Co. began negotiations for financing several large newspapers. A large majority of the stock of that company is owned by the International Paper & Power Co. The first transaction was when the Boston Publishing Co. transferred 50 per cent of its stock to the International Paper Co. The Boston Publishing Co. published the Boston Herald and the Boston Traveler. The International Securities Co., organized, owned and controlled by the International Paper Co., formed a subsidiary known as the Publishers' Investment Corporation, to hold the stock of newspapers being acquired. About one year later the stock of the Boston Herald and Traveler was sold to the former owner and the Publishers' Investment Corporation was in the process of liquidation. The International Paper Co. retained no interest in the publications except a contract to supply news print, the report said.

The report contained the following list of newspapers financed to a more or less extent by the International Paper Co.: The Chicago Daily News, $250,000 of preferred stock, 5000 shares of common stock; Chicago Journal, $1,000,000 worth of debentures; $600,000 of preferred stock and 10,000 shares of common stock; Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press and Albany Evening News, $450,000 of preferred stock, 3000 shares of common stock; Boston Herald and Traveler, 10,248 shares of common stock; Brooklyn Eagle, $19,545,000 of notes; 400 shares of common stock of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle Corporation; Hall & Lavarre, $85,000 of notes secured by stock of the Augusta Chronicle, Columbia Record, and Spartanburg Herald-Traveler; Ithaca Journal-News, $300,000 contingent interest.

Chicago News Stock Resold. The report said that securities of the Chicago Daily News were resold to the executives of the News on Aug. 2, 1929, the International Paper Co. retaining no interest in the stock, but continuing to supply the publications with news print. Commenting on the investments in the Brooklyn Eagle, the Albany newspapers and the Ithaca News-Journal, part of the newspaper interests of Frank C. Gannett of Rochester, N. Y., the report said that in May, 1929, Gannett repaid the International Paper Co. all the money invested by it with his papers and the paper company returned to him all securities involved in the transaction. Preston Goodfellow, the present publisher of the Eagle, announced today that no utility company now owns a share of stock of the Eagle.

With respect to the Hall & Lavarre transactions, the report said that the International Paper Co., subsidiary of the Paper & Power Co., supplied all the money for the purchase price of the papers involved, Hall & Lavarre obtaining an open account from International Paper Co. of nearly $1,000,000 to acquire newspapers in Southern States, in which section the International Paper & Power Co. had power developments, as well as in the West. The report said that after unusual litigation, Hall & Lavarre went into receivership and the International Paper Co. took over the stock of the papers they had acquired about Nov. 1, 1930, at which time the president of the paper company said it was that company's plan to finance as many good newspapers as were available to the extent that the company required an outlet for its paper mills. Its campaign was asserted to be wholly for news print, the report said.

"News Services" Acted. In addition to direct contacts with the press, the report showed that numerous so-called newspaper news and editorial services were given financial support by the utilities and that generally there was no disclosure to the public of this report. The list included:

E. Hofer & Sons, Portland, Ore.; Utilities Publication Co., and Public Service Magazine, Chicago; Public Utilities Reports, Inc., Rochester, N. Y.; Barnall's Newspaper Service, Florence, Ala.; National Industrial Conservation Board, Inc., Chicago; Dixie Magazine, Little Rock, Ark.

The report showed that in one year the Hofer Service was supported by the utilities to the extent of $84,820.80, or about half its budget. Robert M. Hofer testified that the policy pursued by for service was persistently to oppose municipal operation of utility plants and government participation in business. Hofer reported that "reproductions of articles appear almost invariably as original editorials, as we ask no credit." His services went to about 14,000 papers, mostly weeklies.

The Utilities Publication Co. was shown by the report to have received its chief financial support from utility sources. It engaged actively in opposing public ownership. Its head, Harvey J. Gonden, made the claim that "the Public Service Magazine has done more to expose the fallacy of municipal ownership than any other 10 publications in the country." Samuel Insull was a substantial stockholder in this company. Other stockholders were the Commonwealth Edison Co., Electric Bond and Share Co., American Light and Traction Co., United Power and Light Co., Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, Pacific Gas and Electric Co., United Gas Improvement Co., and H. M. Byllesby & Co.

Public Service Magazine, owned by the same company, kept some of the members of its staff traveling over the United States investigating municipally owned property and reported that they "found on the whole that municipal ownership was a flat failure both from an economical and efficiency standpoint." Subscriptions going to meet the cost of these surveys were, according to Gonden, all "secured directly from public utility corporations," the report said.

Darnall's Newspaper Service, at Florence, Ala., received substantial support from the Alabama Power Co. The report said that every weekly paper in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi received this service at one time or another and, for a time, at the suggestion of the Alabama Power Co., several New England papers were on its mailing list. Much of the information this service furnished to the press was related to Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam.

Other Direct Publicity. In the concluding part of the chapter on newspaper publicity, the report said that in addition to the "induced publicity both through the general press and various subsidized agencies, . . . the N. E. L. A., the Joint Committee of Utilities Associations and other utility agencies, each circulated directly large quantities of publicity." This matter ranged from short forms known as "envelope stuffers" up to copy-sized books. It included bulletins, news releases, clip sheets and other forms. In addition to newspapers, the material was furnished to educators, both in colleges and schools, libraries, bankers and public officials, including members of the various legislatures.

"In substance," the report concluded, "this material ranged from that which merely emphasized the value and accomplishments of the private utility industries to material which directly and severely attacked public ownership generally, and also assailed specific public and municipal ownership projects and systems. It particularly included attacks on the Ontario Hydro-Electric System, the Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam projects, the California Water Power bill in three different campaigns, the so-called Bone bill in the State of Washington, and the Oregon Constitutional Amendment."

AUCTION AT HENDERSON HOME

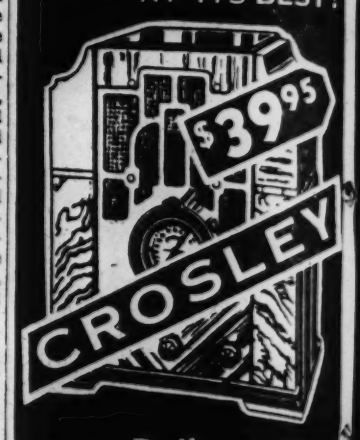

Furnishings in "Castle" of Senator's Widow to Be Sold.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The auctioneer's hammer soon will be heard in the famous brown-turreted castle where the widow of Senator John B. Henderson of Missouri ruled as Washington society's queen mother until her death in 1931. "Henderson Castle" walled in medieval style and sitting atop high terraces at Sixteenth street and Florida avenue, has been vacant four years. Now its valuable furnishings are to be stripped away in the settlement of an estate once valued at $30,000,000. Experts have started cataloguing the treasures, ranging from some of the best work of the French school of painters to the glassware and silver that made the Henderson table famous.

WE WON'T TRADE VALUE FOR VOLUME

• We have no quarrel with the man who buys his shoes solely on the basis of price . . . that is his privilege. But Florsheim is an American institution that cannot be stamped into cutting the heart out of quality for the temporary advantage of lower prices and increased volume.

Forty years of fine shoemaking have taught us that the odds are still heavily in favor of quality . . . so we intend to go right on safeguarding our customers' interests . . . sticking to fine leathers, fine lasts and fine labor.

For this policy has built the largest quality shoe business in the world . . . proving that a fine shoe at a fair price is still a better value than a cheap shoe that substitutes a superficial saving in money for the genuine saving of abiding style and long and satisfactory wear!

GOV. PARK URGES THREE CHANGES IN STATE LIQUOR LAW

In Kansas City He Says Distinction Between 3.2 and Other Beer Must Be Dropped.

By The Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Nov. 22.—Sweeping revision of the Missouri liquor law will be recommended to the next session of the Legislature, Gov. Guy B. Park said in an address before the Chamber of Commerce here yesterday.

Declaring that the existing law was thoroughly unsatisfactory, the Governor outlined three major changes he said he would suggest, as follows:

That the present distinction between 3.2 beer and stronger beer be eliminated and a single license be granted. He said the present dual system was unenforceable.

That the hours of closing be extended, as the midnight closing provided in the present law was an open invitation to violation.

That State enforcement officers be given the right of search and seizure and that more teeth be put into the law.

"I am not a prohibitionist," said the Governor. "I never was a prohibitionist, but I believe the liquor law should be amended to protect society and not the liquor interests and that the liquor interests should and must not meddle in the amendments to this law."

"The liquor law was passed hurriedly and is not a good law. It is too lax. It has too few teeth and should be strengthened. The distinction between 3.2 beer and other beer must be done away with. All kinds of beer should bear the same tax and the same license fee."

To enforce the law which requires that places with licenses to sell only 3.2 beer not sell any beverages of a higher alcoholic content would bankrupt the State because of the number of inspectors required, said the Governor. But that could be remedied, he said, by putting the same tax on both kinds of beer.

"Then," he continued, "there should be an authorization in the amendments permitting officers the right of search and seizure. As the law is written, officers have no right to go into a place and search it."

"Twelve o'clock now is not what 12 o'clock used to be for some of us who now have old gray hairs. Now we may go to bed at 9 o'clock when some of the youngsters are just starting out for the evening."

Park said that he believed formulation of a tax program would be the major problem before the Legislature but that he was not ready yet to outline his program.

CHARGES POLITICS IN RELIEF

Britten Says Democrats Have Threatened to Drop Republicans.

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Representative Fred Britten (Rep.), Ill., note, who was defeated for re-election, said yesterday that Democratic politicians in his district had threatened to remove from the relief rolls persons who voted the Republican ticket in the recent election.

"The administration," Britten said, "should make an investigation of this sort of coercion of the voters in order to clear its own skirts."

DEER HUNTING WITHOUT GUNS

Dakota Warden Asks Sportsmen to Help Him Corral Animals.
BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 22.—E. M. Lee, chief North Dakota game warden, yesterday issued a general invitation to sportsmen to go deer hunting—provided they leave their guns at home and promise not to hurt any of the animals.

Lee will sponsor the "hunt" Dec. 2 in McHenry County with the avowed purpose of corralling 35 deer in the district. The deer, Lee said, had been feeding on produce on farms. He intends to crate the animals and distribute them through the eastern portions of the State.

RICHBERG GIVES HIS PROGRAM FOR PERMANENT NRA

Director of President's Executive Council Outlines Six-Point Plan in Speech in New York.

FOR 'FLEXIBILITY OF CODE MAKING'

Favors Minimum Wages and Maximum Hours—New Conception of Anti-Trust Laws Suggested.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A six-point program for permanent NRA legislation was advanced last night by Donald R. Richberg, director of President Roosevelt's Executive Council.

Richberg, in an address here, also opposed organized labor's demand for a national 30-hour work week. His statements were marked by repeated assertions that he expressed only his own views which "may not be generally acceptable."

Outline of Program.
Although Richberg did not segregate his six points in his address before the Associated Grocery Manufacturers, which also was broadcast, he laid stress on the following:

1. Preservation of the "flexibility of code making" both as to commercial practices and labor conditions.
2. "Soundness of the fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours for each trade and industry."
3. "Dishonest business practices should be proscribed."
4. "Exact reports of production, prices, wages and employment are necessary for economic security in an industrial civilization."
5. "We must change one misconception of the anti-trust laws. . . they were not intended as restraints upon agreements to compete fairly. . . It seems to me reasonable to provide that all trade associations should do business openly and furnish full information concerning their activities to a body which might combine some of the functions and authorities of the administration of NRA and the Federal Trade Commission."

6. "I am profoundly convinced that as originally written and presented to the Congress, it (Section 7-A, guaranteeing labor's collective bargaining rights) expressed clearly a sound principle for the maintenance of satisfactory labor relations."

On Anti-Trust Laws.
Richberg also suggested a changed conception of the anti-trust laws. He said:

"Certain activities could be legalized by statute and others forbidden, with provision that in the twilight zone of interpretation a national code administration would be empowered to authorize or prohibit concerted action. Its decisions should be made reviewable—not by an ordinary lawsuit, but by an appeal for a declaratory judgment by a court of competent jurisdiction."

Text of Remarks on 7-A.
The text of his discussion of the labor provision of the Recovery Act follows:
"Let me say a few words about the knotty issues involved in Section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery Act. At the outset I will accept whatever share of responsibility for the writing of that much debated provision the record charges to my account. I am profoundly convinced that, as originally written and presented to the Congress, it expressed clearly a sound principle for the maintenance of satisfactory labor relations."

"That principle is that the terms and conditions of employment in modern business operations should be worked out by collective bargaining between an employer and the duly authorized representatives of his employees; and that there should be no effort on the part of the employer to deprive his employees of a fair representation of their interests, either by preventing their self-organization, or by exercising improper influence upon their representatives."

"Contract, as once defined by Chesterton, is the slender thread upon which hangs all our civilization." Labor relations, when they concern large groups of employees, can be made certain and satisfactory only through defining them in a contract. But a contract which is brought about through a coercive or fraudulent control of the agent of one party by the other is not a good contract, legally or morally, and cannot be the basis of sound business relations.
"Unfortunately, Section 7-A was written against the background of a long continued struggle in this country over the right of recognition of labor organizations. As a result, the immediate reaction to the requirements of Section 7-A was on the one hand a determination by many of the established unions to expand their memberships and to compel recognition and, on the other hand, the determination of many employers to prevent any such unionization of their employees and to forestall it by creating or encouraging local labor organizations. In the ensuing contest many representatives of both interests have ignored and violated the principle that voluntary organization should be the basis of collective bargaining."

"Warlike demands for the so-called 'open shop' or 'closed shop' raise a false issue which obscures the real issue of liberty of contract. There are many advantages for employers in having only one organization of their employees with which to deal, provided it is responsible and truly representative of the employees. There are many disadvantages for labor in seeking to compel men to join an organization, which, in order to have solidarity and responsibility, should be wholly voluntary.

"If the fundamental principle of section 7-A were adhered to, many employers might wisely make contracts agreeing to employ only men belonging to the labor organization with which they had a contract. Many large employers would much prefer to operate under such conditions if they were dealing with a responsible labor organization to which practice all their employees wished to belong. On the other hand, when labor leaders seek to use the employer as the means of coercing men to join their organization, they are not only creating a poor organization, but they are also violating the fundamental principle of section 7-A.

"If employers and employees were both loyal to that sound principle, the employer would not coerce men, either to join a local organization, or a national organization, but would insist religiously upon leaving them entirely free. Labor organizations on their part would not seek to compel men to join either by coercive methods of their own, or by demanding the aid of the employer in building and maintaining their organizations."

His Idea of Section.
"As I construe section 7-A, its dominant purpose in providing for the self-organization of workers and the selection of representatives of their own choosing is to protect individual liberty and voluntary collective action. Employer coercion alone is prohibited in the express terms of the law for two reasons: First, the unfairness of employer influence arises from his undue advantage in having control over the employees' opportunity to earn a living; whereas if employees seek to persuade other employees to join an organization, they are assumed to be equal in persuasive power. Second, any actual coercion of employer by employees would involve the use of unlawful threats or violence. Under many provisions of the law, written long before section 7-A, such coercion is illegal; and a conspiracy to deprive a man of his constitutional rights or statutory rights under Federal law is made specifically unlawful and subject to some of the severest penalties in the criminal code.

"To those employers who ask for a law to prevent workers from being forced by unlawful threats and violence to join organizations against their will, I would point out that such activities are already prohibited by law and that their real complaint is not that there is no law, but that the law is not enforced. In this connection let it be said also that, while men may find excuses for lawless conduct when they are coerced and intimidated in seeking to exercise their constitutional rights of self-organization, those excuses certainly have little merit when the peaceful exercise of such

OIL CODE APPLICATION UNFAIR, UNION SAYS

Organizer in East Texas Declares Neither Wages Nor Hours Have Been Improved.

By the Associated Press.
DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 22.—P. B. Roberts, union organizer, told the Cole congressional oil inquiry yesterday that disrespect for the Government arising out of the alleged inequitable application of the oil code had led 2000 unionized East Texas oil field workers to Communism. He said membership of the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers dropped from 13,000 to 11,000, the 2000 accepting Communism because they believed the code operated to their detriment in favor of property holders.

Roberts declared he believed the code would be of benefit if enforced, but he said neither wages nor hours of workers had improved under it.

In the last three months, he went on, East Texas oil field workers not only lost the 20 per cent gain in employment which immediately followed the code, but 20 per cent additional.

Fred L. Phillips of Fort Worth, international vice-president of the organization, testified certain companies ordered their employees to say they worked 36 hours a week, six hours a day, when in fact they worked 12 hours a day.

To Run for Father's Seat in House.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 22.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis II, son of the late Congressman-elect Frederick Landis of Logansport, announced last night he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Second Indiana district. Frederick Landis died a few days after he was elected Nov. 6. A special election is to be called.

rights is open to them. "Perhaps the greatest misunderstanding over the application of Section 7-A has arisen in connection with recent controversies over the so-called majority rule. It seems to me that here again confusion and disagreement have developed largely because of the failure of both employers and employees to stand by the fundamental principle of Section 7-A.

Decision of Labor Board.
The decision of the National Labor Relations Board in the Houde case has brought widespread opposition on the part of employers to a doctrine which was not laid down in that case; and a counter rallying of many labor organizations to the support of that same doctrine which was not laid down. It has apparently been assumed that under the Houde case doctrine a voting unit of employees could be created without their approval; and that then the representatives selected by a majority of that voting unit must be accepted as the exclusive representation of all the employees thus compulsorily organized. The fact is that the board explicitly stated: 'This opinion lays down no rule as to what should constitute the proper unit as the basis of representation.' It is a further fact, that under the law, the proper unit which is the basis of representation must be a unit of organization selected by the employees themselves.

"No one has been given any authority under the law, and I doubt whether anyone could be given legally the authority to herd all the employees, or any number of employees, into a voting unit and then compel them to select their representatives by a majority vote. The right of self-organization certainly includes the right of each man to decide for himself with what man he desires to be associated. I submit that there would be serious question of the constitutionality of any law which sought to compel men to unite for the protection of their private interests with those with whom they were unwilling to associate, excluding, of course, those political associations which are inherent in citizenship.

Unionism's Fundamental Theory.
"The construction of Section 7-A, which I am now advancing, is, by the way, entirely consistent with the principles and long established policies of the American Federation of Labor and its constituent labor organizations. The fundamental theory of craft unionism calls for recognition of the right of men to associate with their fellow-workers as they please and not as a mere consequence of employment.

"For example, in a large manufacturing plant there may be employed a group of electrical workers or machinists belonging to their respective unions. These organizations have always asserted the right of their members to organize and to bargain collectively and separately from other classes of employees who might otherwise control their organization. If, under the requirement of a law, an agency of the Federal Government could compel any number of employees to associate together for the purpose of choosing their representatives, then the members of craft unions would be compelled to enter into organizations wherein they would be completely out-voted by unskilled or clerical workers. The national unions have long objected to many employee representation plans sponsored by employers on the ground that they required union members to submit their interests to determination by representatives chosen by other workers with conflicting interests.

Employees and Voting Unit.
"It seems to me evident that the decisive element in the principle of self-organization is the right of employees to determine for themselves what their voting unit shall be, and to insist that all those within that voting unit shall be voluntarily members thereof.

"Applying this principle, how can anyone contend that the decision in the Houde case, supporting the selection of representatives by a majority vote, is not absolutely sound? If a vote is held in which men voluntarily participate for the purpose of selecting their representatives, then, unless those chosen by the majority are to be accepted as representing the entire electorate, there can be no orderly method of collective action. No single man and no minority thereby give up their individual rights. But they do thereby determine the choice of their representatives for collective action; and that choice should be respected by the men themselves and by their employer. I do not understand that the National Labor Relations Board has ever decided that men can be compelled to associate themselves together and then be bound by the vote of the majority.

"When it has been determined who are the self-chosen representatives of the majority of the employees in any voting unit, it would seem obvious that any employer who desires to create and maintain satisfactory labor relations, would endeavor, through collective bargaining, to arrive at an agreement with those representing such a majority. If he evades that opportunity and seeks only to deal with a minority group, it can be fairly questioned whether he is in good faith endeavoring to carry out the purpose of the law, and doing all within his power to establish satisfactory labor relations.

"In final analysis a labor contract like any other agreement must be the product of voluntary action and impose obligations only on those who voluntarily assume them. Every effort by either employers or employees to establish their relations on the basis of coercion or trickery retards instead of advancing the interests of both."

13 PER CENT COST OF ADMINISTERING ST. LOUIS RELIEF

Committee Reports on Expense of Handling Funds in September — Higher Than National Average.

The cost of administering public relief funds in St. Louis was 13 per cent in September, according to figures compiled by the St. Louis Relief Committee.

This compares with an average of 11.79 for the State, and a national average of 11.6 for the same month. Attention has been focused on administrative costs recently by Senator Borah. The Federal Emergency Relief Administration considers anything below 14 per cent "good administration" from the standpoint of economy.

Peter Kasius, St. Louis Relief Administrator, was not disturbed because the St. Louis figure was slightly higher than that for the State or the country. The difference could be explained, he said, largely because of the closer degree of organization required in large communities, and the greater amount of service to those on relief provided by an urban organization.

It would be simple to reduce administrative costs, Kasius said, but the effect would be to increase relief expenditures, because it would not be possible to examine the needs of those on relief and work with them toward some plan for reducing or eliminating the necessity for relief as effectively as can be done with an adequate administrative staff.

Accounting Method a Factor.

In addition, Kasius pointed out, certain expenditures of the St. Louis Relief Committee were charged to administration for accounting reasons, although they are not properly administrative expenses.

mentioned, in September, $4000 for the operation of the St. Louis office of Missouri State Employment Service; $2800 for the operation of the Clothing Bureau, and $6184 paid to truck drivers employed on a work-relief basis to distribute surplus commodities.

September expenditures of public relief funds totaled $1,193,381, of which $38,615 was for central administration, $117,408 for the employment of case workers, and $1,037,358 for direct relief. Expenditures for the month, spent $59,532, of which $8371 was for central administration; $7290 for employment of case workers, and $43,871 for direct relief.

If the administrative costs of private relief agencies were included in the total administrative expense of St. Louis relief organizations in September would be 13.7 per cent. Administrative costs of private agencies were disproportionately higher, largely because they have lent the services of agencies to executives and staff members to the public agencies.

The public agencies, in September, had 1111 employees and were aided by 96 volunteers and 12 whose services were lent by private organizations. The private agencies had 79 employees, and the aid of eight volunteers.

Reorganization of Service. A complete reorganization of the St. Louis relief service as it has functioned through the depression is now in process and will be in operation about the first of the year. The change will entirely divorce the public and private relief agencies which have maintained a closely interlocking relationship.

The St. Louis Relief Committee, largely identical in personnel with Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment, will succeed to most of the responsibilities of the Citizens' Committee. The Citizens' Committee, appointed by the Mayor, is responsible to him, while the Relief Committee derives its powers from State Relief Administrator Crossley.

The Relief Committee will set up 14 district offices throughout the city, and will take over the building of the Provident Association at 2221 Locust street for its central office. The arrangement under which the various private agencies have maintained at their offices "units" of Citizens' Committee, which administered public relief funds, will be eliminated, and the new Relief Committee district offices will take over the relief and personnel of these "units."

While the Citizens' Committee will continue in existence, its principal function will be the operation of the St. Louis office of Missouri State Employment Service, 1806 Washington avenue. The committee last year entered into a contract with the State employment services, which enabled the St. Louis office to receive financial support from the Federal labor service.

Voluntary Aid to Continue. The change will leave the private agencies just where they were before the depression in so far as the administering of public relief funds is concerned. They will continue to aid those in distress who are classed as "unemployable," and for that purpose will seek financial support by voluntary contributions through the United Relief organization.

Harry B. Wallace, who resigned as chairman of Citizens' Committee shortly before the St. Louis Relief Committee was named, is chairman of the Relief Committee. Peter Kasius, who was director of Citizens' Committee, is administrator for the Relief Committee. He is also general manager of the Provident Association, which has lent his services to the Relief Committee.

TRUSTEES OF MO. PAC. URGE REORGANIZATION

Press Van Sweringens and Other Important Interests to Formulate Plan.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Trustees of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. pressed important interests of the road to formulate a plan for reorganization of the company at a meeting here yesterday.

Although many railroad and Government executives, bankers, creditors, bondholders and lawyers convened from various parts of the country, nothing concrete was achieved at the two-hour session behind closed doors, and no specific proposals were presented, spokesmen for the group said.

A statement issued by L. W. Baldwin and Guy A. Thompson, trustees, said they explained that "no one had yet submitted a plan of reorganization, and the trustees as representatives of the Federal Court thought they were under an obligation to insist upon something being done in that direction within a reasonable period of time by either one or all of the various groups having substantial interests in these properties."

Other Meetings to Be Held.
The trustees said a series of such meetings would be held during their trusteeship, at which various interests would discuss matters concerning security holders and creditors.

Although organized bondholders were represented by protective committee chairmen, individual holders were barred from the meeting room. Baldwin said later that individual bondholders would be admitted to future meetings.

It was learned that the Van Sweringens Brothers, majority common stockholders as well as important holders of bonds through their Alleghany Corp., were expected to present a plan for reorganization at the next meeting.

Jones' Comment.
Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who attended the meeting, declined to enlarge on the situation beyond saying the trustees reported on the road's condition. In reply to a question, Jones said few railroad reorganizations were looked for within the next six months and that some changes in bankruptcy and reorganization laws were probably under consideration in legislative circles. He also said he did not anticipate any new receiverships in the near future.

Jones was accompanied by A. A. Berle Jr., adviser to the RFC. J. W. Barringer and C. M. Clay of the RFC also were present. Leslie C. Egan represented the Federal Co-ordinator of Railroads, while E. G. Buckland attended as president of the Railroad Credit Corporation.

O. P. Van Sweringens There.
O. P. Van Sweringens was present, with George W. Eckenrode of Eckenrode & Co., Earle Baillie of J. P. Seligman, S. Parker Gilbert of J. P. Morgan & Co., Dewitt Millhauser of Speyer & Co., and E. S. S. Sunderland of the Guaranty Trust Co., who represented bankers interested in the Missouri Pacific situation.

A group of protective committee chairmen also attended, including John W. Stedman, Edward C. Delafield, Willard W. King, R. G. Page, Dean Mathey and W. Lloyd Kitchell, counsel for one of the committees.

There were also several trust officers, staff officers of the railroads, lawyers for the mortgage trustees and representatives of investment houses.

In addition to the Missouri Pacific, the trustees also represented the Gulf Coast lines, International-Great Northern and Missouri-Illinois railroads, subsidiary "Mop" lines.

Knock Out that COLD!

Give It No Chance To Get Going!

A cold once underway is a cold hard to drive away! Let no cold endanger you. At the first chill or sneeze, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It usually makes short work of a cold because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets at a cold from the inside. A cold, you know, is an internal infection and calls for internal treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine means COMPLETE relief because it is COMPLETE treatment. It does all the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the action you want, and anything less is taking chances. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any drugist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute.

GIVES AWAY MILLION STARTS HUNTING

Heir of Former New York
President Takes Up Relief Work.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Selling a sweater on a cold free lodging house maintained the FERA. Alexander Ector Munsell said last night he had given away his entire fortune of a million dollars during the last months.

"The only joy I found in millions of dollars was in giving it away," he remarked. "Now, like millions of others, I am looking for a new job. In seven weeks of my inheritance, which has added to $27 a week, will be standing on my feet."

Munsell, one of four heirs of a $7,000,000 legacy of his grandfather, the same name, who was president of the New York Life Insurance Co., gave half of the inheritance to his estranged wife, Mrs. Jean Dodd Munsell of Boston, and the other half to his charity work.

"I have managed to get by on a little salary," he said, "but I have a lot of money. I have saved $300. In a day before market collapse of 1929, I earned $100,000 in a day before market collapse of 1929."

He lived in the lodging house recently, interviewing thousands of people in Government relief. Now trying to interest wealthy people in contributing relief to the poor, he has kept a record of his work, as a result of which, he has become "quite a psychologist."

He was two sons at a school and another at a school in Concord, Mass. His mother, Mrs. Julia Nowles, San Francisco.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—The story of Alexander Ector Munsell that he gave away his fortune brought terse comment from his mother, Mrs. Munsell of San Francisco.

"Yes, it's true," she said, "but I have given away his entire fortune. I don't care to discuss further."

OBJECTIONS TO PROPOSED REORGANIZATION OF

Two Bondholders of Winkles

Cotta Co. Contend Plan Is Fair and Discriminatory.

Objections to the proposed reorganization of the Winkles Terra Co., 5739 Manchester avenue, under the amended bankruptcy law were filed in Federal Court today by Edith Haase, described as holder of $3300 of company bonds, and Bessie L. Brackett, described as holder of $10,600 of the same bonds.

They contend the reorganization plan, proposing issuance of preferred stock for $157,500 in which about $21,000 interest due, is unfair in that it does not mortgage securing the debt. They allege also that the plan discriminates against preferred creditors in favor of general creditors.

FINED $500 FOR KNOCKING OFFICER DOWN WITH

Max Kannapell, Driver, Twice to Appear in Court to Answer Charges.

Max Kannapell, 4701 N. 10th avenue, was fined $500 by Judge Vest today on charges of knocking down a police officer on Delmar boulevard Sept. 22. He was charged with the death of a street car.

On Nov. 9 Kannapell was $300 by default. At the recent hearing, the case was for today, but when Kannapell failed to appear, Judge Vest assessed the larger fine. Money was heard today. Wellington testified at the previous hearing.

WIVES AWAY MILLION, STARTS HUNTING JOB

Wife of Former New York Life President Takes Up Relief Work.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Sitting, waiting a sweater on a cot in a free lodging house maintained by the FERA, Alexander Ector Orr Munsell said last night he had given away his entire fortune of nearly a million dollars during the last 15 months.

The only joy I found in my million-dollar loss was in giving it away," he remarked. "Now, like millions of others, I am looking for a $25-a-week job. In seven weeks the last of my inheritance, which has dwindled to $27 a week, will be stopped, and I'll be standing on my own feet."

Munsell, one of four heirs to the $1,000,000 legacy of his grandfather of the same name, who was president of the New York Life Insurance Co., gave half of the bequest to his estranged wife, Margaret, and the other half to his mother, Mrs. Dodd Munsell of Boston. Most of his charity he dispensed in Baltimore.

"I have managed to get by during the last year," he said, "by taking a little serving on Baltimore parties. In fact, I have managed to save $300." He said he earned $100,000 in a day before the market collapse of 1929.

He lived in the lodging house until recently interviewing those seeking Government relief. Now he is going to interest wealthy persons in contributing relief to the poor. He has kept a record of his donations as a result of which, he said, he has become "quite a social psychologist."

He was two sons at a Tucson Arizona school and another at school in Concord, Mass. His mother and sister, Mrs. Julia Nowles, live in San Francisco.

FINED $500 FOR KNOCKING OFFICER DOWN WITH AUTO

Max Kannapell, Driver, Twice Fails to Appear in Court to Answer Charges.

Max Kannapell, 4701 Nebraska avenue, was fined $500 by Police Judge Vest today on charges growing out of an accident at Grand and Delmar boulevards Sept. 22, in which Kannapell, disregarding the signal of Traffic Officer Buford Welsh, knocked Welsh down and into the path of a street car.

On Nov. 9 Kannapell was fined $100 by default. At the request of his attorney, the case was reset for today, but when Kannapell again failed to appear, Judge Vest assessed the larger fine. No testimony was heard today, Welsh having testified at the previous trial.

CLAIMS FOR $15,000 FILED AGAINST FORISTEL ESTATE

Based on Promissory Note Held by Southern Commercial and Savings Bank.

Claims on two promissory notes totaling $15,000 were filed in Probate Court today against the estate of Edward W. Foristel, attorney, who died last July 10. Both notes were drawn in favor of the Southern Commercial and Savings Bank, 7201 South Broadway, payable on demand.

One note is for $9000, signed by Foristel last June 20, which is protected by collateral security. The other for $6000 was signed by the South Side Ice Cream Co., 7000 Michigan avenue, through Francis G. Foristel as secretary, and guaranteed by H. B. Wolken, president; E. G. Brinkman, vice-president, and E. W. Foristel. Interest on the latter note was paid to Aug. 31.

The claims on the Foristel estate are directed against Mrs. Mae Foristel, 4900 South Broadway, the attorney's widow. She is executrix under his will. An inventory of the estate has not been filed.

CARDINALS TRADE CARLETON TO CUBS FOR TWO PITCHERS

'Dizzy' Dean Confers With Rickey; May Be Signed to New Contract

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 22.—James Otto Carleton, who won 16 games for the 1934 Cardinals, has been traded to the Cubs for Pitchers Bud Tinning and Dick Ward, and Virgil Davis, catcher, is the next Redbird likely to figure in a player exchange, according to rumors in circulation today as the National Association of Professional Leagues started the second day of its thirty-third annual convention.

Davis was offered along with Carleton and an infielder in an effort to obtain an infielder and an outfielder from another National League club, and according to the best obtainable information, the Cardinals front office expects Bill Delaney to do most of the 1935 catching, with a young back stop from Houston, named Ogonowski, serving as second string receiver.

Dizzy Dean signed to a contract for 1935 before the convention is concluded. Dizzy arrived last night, spent three hours in conference with Branch Rickey, but according to Rickey, the Cardinals vice-president, the contract was not mentioned. Dizzy was summoned to Louisville to consider an advertising contract, and an attempt was made to make the visit a secret one. Rickey said he thought it would be a good idea if Jerome Herman could sneak into town and out again, without anybody knowing about it. But Rickey doesn't know his Dizzy Dean.

Rickey said this morning that baseball contracts would not be discussed with Dizzy unless the player brought up the subject, but indicated that he would welcome the chance to sign Jerome Herman.

It was learned today that a change was made in Dizzy's extra baseball contract during the world series period. Two years ago, Dizzy signed a contract with one of the officials of the Cardinal club whereby he agreed to give the Cardinal official 33-1-3 per cent of all his earnings outside of major league baseball, which meant vaudeville, movies, exhibition games, advertising contracts and writing.

Cut Reduced to 10 Per Cent. The high authorities of baseball heard about the arrangement and after an investigation the Cardinal official's cut was reduced to 10 per cent, which made it a very fair contract. Dizzy's earnings this year since the world series, are said to have totaled about $12,000 and he is still picking up tidy sums from advertising costs, vests, pants, caps, shoes, etc.

Franklin Frisch, who probably was surprised at the other pitchers when he was informed that Branch Rickey had arranged the Carleton trade with the Cubs, today discussed his plans for 1935, and announced that he was counting on St. Louis as his starting pitcher. Frisch figures that Tinning will be valuable as a relief pitcher, and if he serves satisfactorily in that capacity, the trade may turn out to be a better one than it appears at first consideration. Since 1920, when Jim Lindsey saved numerous games for faltering comrades, the Redbirds have not had a dependable knight of the bullpen.

Dizzy and Paul Dean, Bill Walker and Malone are the starting pitchers now on the roster, according to Frisch.

Ward Won 20 Games in Coast League; Browns Send Campbell to Cleveland

When Frisch heard about the deal for Tinning and Ward, he told Coach Mike Gonzales to put on as much weight as possible during the winter and to be prepared to wear out numerous fungo sticks during the spring training period. Tinning, to explain the idea Frank was trying to convey, has considerable training keeping his arm in shape, and one of Gonzales' jobs will be to chase him around the Bradenton practice field with the aid of a fungo stick and long flies.

Ward was with Los Angeles in 1933 and reported to the Cubs last spring. During his stay in Los Angeles he had great difficulty in getting anybody out and was sent back to the Coast League. He started badly and finally told the Los Angeles manager that one of the Cub pitchers had advised him to throw slow curves, instead of his fast ball. The manager ordered him to return to his fast ball and after that Ward won 20 games, despite his bad start.

Chicago baseball writers today described Ward as an ambitious right-hander, strong, eager to work and able to pitch three or four times a week if necessary.

Deal With Dodgers Pending? When asked if the Cardinals had received cash along with Tinning and Ward, Rickey replied that time would show that club had made a highly advantageous deal and that both Ward and Tinning would help the team materially.

The Cardinals probably were influenced in the transaction by the fact that Carleton has not shown satisfactory constitutional strength. He reported at the 1934 training camp about 12 pounds under weight and was under a doctor's care through much of the season in an effort to build up his weight and strength.

One of the persistent trade rumors involving the Cardinals is that a deal is on the fire whereby Bill Hallahan and Pepper Martin will be traded to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Third Baseman Joe Stripp and Pitcher Van Lingle Mungo.

The Cubs are said to be about

Gertrude Webb, St. Louis Girl Athlete, Impressed by German And Japanese Women in Sport

By Damon Kerby.

The enthusiasm shown by the Japanese for sports, as reflected in the attendance at baseball games in which Babe Ruth and other major league stars are participating across the Pacific, is no surprise to those who have had an opportunity to observe Japanese athletes in action in recent months.

Miss Gertrude Webb, St. Louis girl who competed in the Women's World Games in London this year, is one of those. She was impressed by the serious manner shown by the Japanese toward athletics.

Japan sent a full quota of girl athletes for every scheduled event, with a track coach for those who competed in the track events and a field coach for the girls in the field events. All were under the direction of a head trainer.

According to Miss Webb, the Japanese coaches and girls "didn't miss a trick." They carefully studied the form of all competing stars and, through interpreters, questioned them closely as to their habits of training and diet.

When they studied the form of athletes of other nations, the Japanese nevertheless followed their own ideas of training. Led by their coaches and trainer, the Japanese team, both track and field, jogged around the field for a half hour and then went through a period of setting-up exercises before dual competition started.

BILLIKENS AND BEARS WORKING ON DIFFERENT PRACTICE LINES

Brown May Get In East-West Game on Coast

BECAUSE of his excellent play in games this season, there is a fine chance that Captain Harry Brown of the Washington Bears may be chosen to play as a member of the West team in the big East-West game always contested after the regular season on the Pacific Coast.

Brown has averaged more than 100 yards in each of the eight games his team has played and has been such a stand-out that officials who have worked Washington games have already recommended him to the committee that will select the players for the big game.

By James M. Gould.

Contrasting methods are being used by the Washington University Bears and the St. Louis University Billikens in preparation for the Thanksgiving day game between the two schools. The Billikens are striving to do no serious scrimmaging while the Bears are planning two-man-to-man "fights" this week-end.

The Bears are, to a certain extent, taking things easy; confidence is theirs on the other hand, are much more "actively engaged" in practice; at Walsh Stadium there is a grim determination in the proceedings.

As a matter of fact, this annual meeting shapes up as a series of contrasts. The Billikens are striving to attain that "certain something" which the team has lacked all season—that "click," that "lets-go-somewhere" touch. As for the Bears, they fear only stalemate and are trying to keep what they've got.

Quite a Difference. The Bears—knows exactly what its starting lineup will be; the other—the Billikens—are certain only that Krause will start at center. The Bears are cocky in the position of rest attack and are satisfied with their defense; the Billikens are trying to locate an A. W. O. L. offense and, after the game last Friday with the Kirksville Teachers, their confidence in their defense is sadly shaken.

The Bears are hoping for a dry, fast field, Thanksgiving day; the Billikens hope the mud is at least a foot deep on the gridiron. Time was and not so long ago when the hope was just the other way.

Now, the idea that the casual fan has about this game is that the Bears, deservedly the favorites after their 3-1 showing this season, are going to win by a margin "from here to there," or from Cos Cob, N. Y., to Kiev, Russia. That may be the general idea but the Washington coaches don't share at all in the belief.

"I look for another Illinois or another Kansas game," Coach Jimmy Conzelmann said today, "and if anyone can absolutely assure me that we'll beat the 3-1, I'll be a single point. I'll be a lot more exact in the next week than I expect to get. Any idea that we are going to push the St. Louis team off the field or that they'll want to cancel the game is due to pure enthusiasm rather than good judgment."

For Coach Muellerleile, he insists that his team will win. "I admit," said Mull, "that Washington will be and should be favorite. But, after all that's got very little to do with the game and I am so pleased with the spirit my players are showing that I believe we're going to experience that reversal of form we've been hoping for all season. Honestly, I think the game will be very close and that St. Louis will win."

Both elevens are going in for secret practice. Perhaps that of the Bears will not be entirely secret but the Billikens workouts will be. Special guards have been installed and only a favored few will be allowed within the precincts of Walsh Stadium.

Chances are that Washington will continue to pin its faith on offensive plays which have worked so well this season and that St. Louis will introduce some innovations on attack on the general theory that the Bears' new offensive plays hardly can be more unproductive than the ones they have used and which have produced only 52 points in seven games.

ANDERSON AND STIX WIN IN WESLEY SCCR

The Andersons and Stix soccer elevens won the two games played in the Wesley House Soccer League Junior division last night, the Andersons scoring a 3-2 victory over the Cubs and Al Stix shot in the last two minutes of play, and the Stix routing the Scorpions, 6-0.

Charles Ambersley and Ray Derwin scored the first two goals for the Andersons, while Ed Clarkin and Joe Lane shot goals for the Cubs. In the other game, Jim Nelson of the Stix had two goals, while Frank Muehlich, Clady Morgan, Ed Gunning and Vernon Clark each had one.

WRAKS COLUMN

The Coach's Lot Is Not So Hot.

WONDER what a football coach thinks about as he prepares to send an eleven that hasn't won a game this season and has scored only two victories in three years, to battle the Nebraska Cornhuskers?

Frank Carideo of the Missouri Tigers is the coach who will be entitled to soliloquize, and it needs no horoscope-caster to predict that he will, first that his thoughts, however worded, will be gloomy and, second, that Frank is going to predict a long journey from Columbia, in the not too distant future.

Beaten to a pulp by rivals this year, the Tigers are in no shape to battle against the Nebraskaans with any hope of success. Nor will Carideo's musings be rendered more cheerful by the fact that five days later he must send the fragments that survive the Nebraska disaster against the rugged Kansas eleven. Add two more beatings to the Missouri record and it will read like this: 27 games played in three years, two games won.

After the Wine, the Lees.

ALL of which, happening to a man who five or six years ago was the talk of the country and the outstanding star of the football world must be a bitter cup to swallow—after the wine, the lees.

Carideo, however, need not be too discouraged by the situation. Under more sympathetic conditions and with proper cooperation he may become as great a teacher of football as he once was a player.

Carideo was called to a university where factions were battling; he succeeded a coach who had a very strong following among alumni and other supporters of the eleven; he inherited a dispirited squad of players which subsequently gradually skidded down hill, in quality of personnel; and he had to completely change the football system that had been taught for years at the university. It was even reported that he encountered hostility based on religious differences.

Such a set-up was doomed to failure from the beginning. It is doubtful if any coach could have beaten that combination of handicaps.

Names Are Nominal.

BUT Missouri University authorities apparently did not foresee the difficulties in the way of Carideo. They wanted a famous name, so they released in haste a first-rate football coach in Glen Henry—and now they are repenting at leisure.

In three years the new coaching system resulted in two tie games, two victories and 21 defeats, with 516 total points made by opponents in 109 by Missouri—indicating the complete failure of Missouri's investment in famous names.

Following are the harrowing details of the Tigers' football record for the past three seasons—and the record is yet to come.

"Conzelmann for Missouri" Move Opens at Columbia

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 22.

THE Missouri Student, University of Missouri campus weekly, which, in its last two issues, has tossed editorial bombshells at the Tiger athletic department over continued football losses, turned its football discussions in this week's issue to praise for Jimmy Conzelmann, coach of the Washington Bears, who last Saturday walloped Coach Frank Carideo's Missourians, 40 to 13.

The campus inferred that The Student, under editorship of Howard Young, St. Louis, was tacitly suggesting that Missouri U. authorities might do well to attempt to bring Conzelmann to Missouri to replace either of both Coach Carideo or C. L. Brewer, director of athletics.

"Our hats go off to Jimmy Conzelmann," the Student editorial said. "If a miracle ever stepped onto the old gridiron, it was Jimmy. In three years he has taken Washington University from a mediocre standing in athletics to a most enviable position in the football world. Last Saturday Columbia had ample opportunity to victor of Sir James' masterpieces. It spoke for itself. It was a real football team, filled with the fighting spirit that few teams possess.

WOOD, DIEGEL AND SHUTE ARE OTHERS TO GO TO SEMIFINALS

MELBOURNE, Nov. 22.—Joe Ezar of Waco, Tex., formerly of St. Louis, scored a sensational victory over Harry Cooper of Chicago on the thirty-seventh hole to reach the semi-finals of the Melbourne Centenary professional golf championship along with three other Americans. An eagle three on the thirteenth enabled Ezar to down Cooper.

Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., eliminated Jimmy Thompson of Los Angeles, winner of last week's $5000 Centenary open, 2 and 1. Densmore Shute of Philadelphia, 1933 British open champion, defeated Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., American pro title holder, 4 and 3, while Leo Diegel of Philadelphia pushed out Australia's sole remaining contender, Martin Smith of Victoria, 7 and 6.

Jack McLean, Scottish amateur champion, won the companion Centenary amateur tournament by beating H. W. Hattersley, former Australian amateur title holder, 11 and 8.

The struggle between Ezar and Cooper was one of the most thrilling ever seen here and was followed by a great crowd, a majority of whom were openly sympathetic with the Texan.

Plainly disturbed by the gallery's behavior, Cooper missed a three-foot putt on the thirty-sixth which would have given him victory. Ezar made a brilliant tee shot on the short thirty-first, the ball landing squarely in the cup but bouncing.

Shute, reaching top form at last, cracked out a superb 66 in the morning round against Runyan, two under the official record, to lead 8 up. He slumped slightly in the afternoon, but easily coasted through to victory.

Thompson's poor putting cost him his chance to remain in the $2500 tournament. Wood, who was steady with the irons, made several remarkable recoveries from bunkers.

CARONDELET ELEVEN CAN WIN DE MOLAY TITLE NEXT SUNDAY

The De Molay Football League will enter into the semi-final round of competition Sunday afternoon at Baker's South Side Park. The Harmond Chapter faces Sentinel at 1:30, and Carondelet Chapter, the league leader, tackles St. Louis Chapter in the feature at 3:30. The second-place Perfection squad has drawn the bye.

Disappointed when they suffered their first loss in six games last week as Perfection eked out a 7 to 6 verdict due to a last quarter touchdown, Carondelet has been working hard to get its plays ready for use against St. Louis. The South Side need one more victory to clinch the title. Their last championship was won in 1930.

Heavy work was also the order of the day for the St. Louis team. Coach Ralph Prinz was pleased with the performance of his men on the wet turf last night at Forest Park. Del and Byron Watts and Lloyd Gilstrap, the casualties, participated in a light drill, and it was announced that they would be in the starting lineup against their South Side rivals. The Carondelet squad won an 8 to 0 decision over St. Louis in their first game.

Facing a team which has lost six straight games, and one that has failed to score a point, but has allowed the enemy 303, has given Coach Boise Potthoff's Harmony Chapter gridders little cause to worry over the outcome of their game against Sentinel, and they have been drilling easily during the past few days. Harmony, which has divided six games, crushed Sentinel, 76 to 0, in their first encounter.

Bigger halls are going to be needed if the entries to the Post-Dispatch's free school of boxing keep piling in. Almost 400 boys reported to Harry Kessler for their first workouts at Sherman Park last night.

What a crowd that was! In the space that normally is used for two regulation basketball courts, were all sorts of youngsters from 16 to 21. There were big lads, medium sized ones, small ones, thin ones and chunky ones. All were just as interested in the program as if they were training for championship fights.

Some of them will become title-winners because the Post-Dispatch will sponsor a show late in January in which the best boys will compete.

Although this is a school, yet it is one in which the boys do not mind doing home work. What a boxer do home work? Certainly, because the sessions are so short, only an hour's time, that those who want to progress rapidly can not work out enough to suit them. The boys are encouraged by the instructors—Benny Harry and Solly Kessler—to practice the punches that they have been taught as often and as much as they wish. In addition to that the youngsters are expected to do a mile road work at least twice a week.

A good many of the boys are taking the instructions to heart and the practice they have put in was apparent even in that large group at Sherman Park. To such a point have they advanced, that Harry Kessler gave them right hand work, which is preparatory to the second lesson.

The group down at Concordia Center, which convenes tonight, has not reached that stage, but they will after their second strenuous session. Tomorrow night the third group, that at Mullaphy, will meet and that will close the first week of school.

If the numbers swell at the last two centers the way they have at Sherman Park, then there will be much more work for the Kesslers to do. However, no boy will be neglected and if there are some lads who are on the verge of entering the school they should do so

PATENAUE, STAR CENTER FORWARD MAY PLAY WITH CENTRALS HERE

By Dent McSkimming

Bert Patenaue, outstanding soccer center forward of America, will in all probability become a member of the Central club of the St. Louis Soccer League within the next week, Jack Dwyer, owner of the team announced today. Patenaue has been playing this season with a Philadelphia club but recently obtained his release and entered into negotiations with the Central club management.

It will be recalled that Patenaue was at center forward for the Fall River club at the time that team won a succession of national championships. He, like Billy Gonsalves, is a native of Fall River and his development in professional soccer is due to the coaching of Alex McNab, now captain of the Central club.

At the present time Frank Barnhart and Hank Bruder hold the inside track for Ben-nis' right guard position. Wilbur Henry, now being tried as a halfback, will probably be shifted back to quarterback next season in the quest for a successor to Jack Beynon.

At Fall River, McNab played outside right. Gonsalves was at inside right. Patenaue, center, just as they will line up here as soon as Patenaue reaches St. Louis. The combination was broken up in 1931, and Patenaue was not with McNab on the New Bedford club that defeated the Stix here in the national cup final of 1932. In his stead McNab brought out Werner Nilsen, who previously had played an inside right position. Nilsen became a very effective goal getter although he confessed he felt himself better suited to the inside position.

When Fall River defeated an all-star St. Louis club in an exhibition match at Walsh Stadium in the spring of 1931, Patenaue was at center forward, between Gonsalves and Nilsen. He scored the goal that beat St. Louis, 2 to 1.

It was learned today that the Central club is negotiating for the services of a great center halfback as well as a wing halfback, both products of Scottish football. With Jimmy Roe apparently fit again after having suffered a slight knee injury, there remain only one or two positions on the club that need strengthening. If Dwyer is successful in landing the two halfbacks he is after, all holes will be plugged and the team will be headed for another national title.

Six players of as many teams are leading the individual scoring parade in the Municipal Soccer League with four goals apiece after five rounds of competition.

The goal-scoring are: G. Rudloff of the Kellys; W. Corbett of the Hellrun-Grimms; W. Rogies of the German Sport Club No. 1; G. Dunn of the Unbacked Wonders; J. Potye of the St. Francis de Sales; and R. Driscoll of the Winkler Markets.

Dunn scored all of his goals in one game.

The champion Alpen Braus of Fairground No. 2 are leading in team scoring with 13 goals while having allowed only four. Only one of the 36 machine teams has held all of its opponents scoreless, the Russo New Deals of Fairground No. 3.

The leading scorers after the fifth-round games are:

FOUR GOALS—G. Rudloff, Kellys; W. Corbett, Hellrun-Grimms; W. Rogies, German Sport Club No. 1; G. Dunn, Unbacked Wonders; J. Potye, St. Francis de Sales; and R. Driscoll, Winkler Markets.

THREE GOALS—S. Nolan, W. Fogarty and J. Ikemeyer, Alpen Braus; J. Vitale and Parker, Russo New Deals; H. Maher, Voglers; J. Sheldon, Wellstone; Busalacchi, Russo Brothers; R. McCormick, German Sport Club No. 2; J. Sturm, St. Francis de Sales; J. Phelan, Carlstroms.

12 Illinois Stars To End College Careers Saturday

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 22.—TWELVE Illinois gridgers, four of whom may be counted as regulars, will complete their three years of football eligibility in the game at Chicago Saturday.

Co-Captains Jack Beynon and Chuck Bennis, George Abraham, Jack Craven, Bart Cummings, John Fischer, Elbert Gragg, Frank Froeschauer, Julius Hoeft, Harry Palmer, and Crain Portman are the men who will be completing their grid careers.

Finding replacements for the positions now held by Beynon and Bennis and the right half-back post where Froeschauer and Portman are now sharing the duties will be the biggest problem facing Coach Bob Zupke next year. The fullback position where Fischer is now favored may be capably filled by either Howie Carson or John Theodoros, a pair of sophomores, who have seen considerable service this season.

At the present time Frank Barnhart and Hank Bruder hold the inside track for Ben-nis' right guard position. Wilbur Henry, now being tried as a halfback, will probably be shifted back to quarterback next season in the quest for a successor to Jack Beynon.

made in the Municipal Soccer League with four goals apiece after five rounds of competition.

The goal-scoring are: G. Rudloff of the Kellys; W. Corbett of the Hellrun-Grimms; W. Rogies of the German Sport Club No. 1; G. Dunn of the Unbacked Wonders; J. Potye of the St. Francis de Sales; and R. Driscoll of the Winkler Markets.

Dunn scored all of his goals in one game.

The champion Alpen Braus of Fairground No. 2 are leading in team scoring with 13 goals while having allowed only four. Only one of the 36 machine teams has held all of its opponents scoreless, the Russo New Deals of Fairground No. 3.

The leading scorers after the fifth-round games are:

THREE GOALS—S. Nolan, W. Fogarty and J. Ikemeyer, Alpen Braus; J. Vitale and Parker, Russo New Deals; H. Maher, Voglers; J. Sheldon, Wellstone; Busalacchi, Russo Brothers; R. McCormick, German Sport Club No. 2; J. Sturm, St. Francis de Sales; J. Phelan, Carlstroms.

STRIEBEL STOPS CHICAGO HEAVYWEIGHT IN AMATEUR BOUT

BARTZ DROPPED FOR COUNT IN FOURTH ROUND; 2500 SEE SHOW

COLISEUM RESULTS

Don Lyons, Sherman A. C., defeated Lester Goetz, Madison, Ill., (135 pounds).
 Russ Ringerberg, Peoria, Ill., defeated Egon Longiaru, Springfield, Ill., (135 pounds).
 Jimmy Webb, Sherman A. C., defeated Herman West, Buckner, Ill., (175 pounds).
 Irwin Striebel, South Broadway A. C., knocked out Kurt Bartz, Chicago, fourth round, heavyweights.
 Edgar-John Solori and Bob Parkinson, Referees—Al Neid and Harry Kessler.

By W. J. McGowan.

Irwin Striebel, South Broadway amateur heavyweight, scored the only knockout of an eight-bout card at the Coliseum last night in which St. Louis boys broke camp with fighters from other cities in four special bouts, while in the preliminaries, St. Louisans won three of four contests.

A left hook to the jaw by Striebel flattened Kurt Bartz, who says he recently won the heavyweight title of the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament in the novice class.

The South Broadway boxer weighed 225 pounds, 10 pounds more than his opponent, and had him outclassed all the way. It was Striebel's second start since he went to the final of the National A. U. tournament at the Arena last spring.

West Wins From Nichols.
 Russ Ringerberg, of Peoria, Ill., outpointed Egon Longiaru, Springfield, Ill., in a light weight contest, while Herman West, Buckner, Ill., floored Jackie Nichols for an eight count and then proceeded to outpoint him in a light heavyweight battle.

Jimmy Webb, Sherman A. C., dropped Johnny Martin, Springfield, Ill., twice for counts of nine and despite Martin's rally in the last two rounds had a comfortable margin at the end. The boys are welterweights.

Paul Spica, Sherman A. C., won from Willard Penrod, Madison, Ill., in a featherweight preliminary, while Don Lyons, Peoria, Ill., outpointed Lester Goetz, Madison, Ill., in the first and one of the most closely fought contests of the program.

Bill Schreiber, Walnut Park A. C., had a scrap of his hands in outpointing Henry Solori, of Kimmisfield, Mo., while Ralph Publin, Madison, Ill., outpointed Joe Scholze, Du Quoin, Ill., in a bantamweight bout.

2531 Persons Attend Show.
 A crowd of 2531 persons paid $1150.50 to see the fight. The city and the State received $53.30 each. Benny Kessler, promoter of the program, announced the next card, that would feature an international program, with a Canadian team against a picked squad of amateurs from St. Louis and vicinity.

Last night's turnout was the largest for any amateur boxing performance since the national tournament. The state of the crowds has been increasing steadily since Kessler began his venture about two months ago.

Striebel to Box Bates.
 Irwin Striebel's knockout victory over Kurt Bartz of Chicago at the Coliseum last night landed the Western A. A. U. heavyweight champion a more important amateur test for next Tuesday night's amateur boxing program at the South Broadway A. C. Striebel will oppose Win Bates, of Bloomington, Ill., in one of the feature fights of the South Side tournament, according to an announcement from Matchmaker-Willie Miller.

Bates is a member of the Illinois Wesleyan football squad, weighs 200 pounds and has lost only two decisions in 26 fights.

Jack Beatty, coach and trainer of the Peoria ringmen who fought at the Coliseum last night, is authority for the statement that Bates is the best young heavyweight in that section.

Coast Conference to Select Its Rose Bowl Representative Monday

By the Associated Press.
 LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22.—The West's representative for the rose tournament football game at Pasadena, Jan. 1, 1935, probably will be named by the Pacific Coast Conference here Monday.

This announcement was made today by Prof. Hugh C. Willett, of the University of Southern California, who is president of the conference, and is president of the group. The 10 members of the conference are casting secret ballots now.

Power to select the Western team was put in the hands of the conference last year by the Tournament of Roses Committee of Pasadena as a direct result of adverse criticism from several sources over selections made in the past.

As in other years, however, the invited team from the East, South or Middle West, will get its bid from the institution selected, independent of the coast conference.

Since the group does not recognize an official grid champion, a Stillman signed yesterday. He fought Petrin once before and came off second best.

Petrin's bout with Olin, the new champion, was stopped in the ninth round when Petrin received a bad cut over his left eye.

Mat Program at Coliseum Tonight

Middleweight wrestlers, who have been featured in neighborhood shows throughout the St. Louis district for the past two years under the promotional auspices of Bill Schwabe, will move into the Coliseum ring tonight.

For his first Coliseum program, Schwabe will present two finish events. Tony Rath, reported to be undefeated this season, will meet John Anderson, St. Louis University wrestler, and John Demko will appear against Virgil Kramer.

Three preliminaries, of 30 minutes each, are scheduled. The principals will be Morris Golub and Sam Woolsey, Al Haemmerle and Dick Heibel, Golub and Woolsey are light heavies; all others, middleweights.

The Young Democratic Club and the Young Men's Hebrew Association were the final entrants. Other city championship Golubs, the Affton Boaters, the St. Louis Pabs, the North St. Louis Turners, the A. A. Laundry and the Olympics.

Golf Pros Plan To Foster Sport In High Schools

By the Associated Press.
 CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Golf professionals of the nation launched a plan yesterday to foster the game among the youth of the country.

Delegates attending the Professional Golfers' Association convention here endorsed a move to promote boys' championships to be worked out along the lines of the American League baseball tournament, with sectional, State and national competition. They plan to foster the sport in high schools.

George Jacobus of Ridgewood, N. J., Country Club, was elected president of the organization for the third consecutive year. R. W. Tracy of Milwaukee was named secretary and J. B. Macdonald, treasurer. The 1935 championship was awarded to the Twin Hills Country Club of Oklahoma City, with the club to be set later.

The proposal to broaden the rules matches to permit 64 players to qualify for the final match play favorably regarded by the delegates. The proposal was referred to the executive committee to work out the necessary details to put the plan in operation for next year's tournament.

Four Vocina youths went to this fall, and Pop Warner has half a dozen Californians at Temple, including Bill Peacock, Santa Barbara; Ed Niemann, Oakland; Bobby Norton, San Francisco, and Carson Conrad, Compton.

TIE GAME WILL GIVE MCKINLEY ITS FIRST TITLE IN 17 SEASONS

By Harold Tuthill.

In days of old, when the City High School League was a youngster, McKinley dominated football. After a lapse of 17 years the Goldbugs are making a strong bid to reclaim that position and they will meet Roosevelt for the 1934 championship Saturday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium.

Maybe it's the irony of fate that these two schools should be playing for the title, because the present Roosevelt acquired its star down on Russell boulevard, the site of McKinley. When Roosevelt entered the league in 1926, McKinley was reduced to a junior high school. Then in 1927, McKinley again became a four-year school and rejoined the circuit.

It took the Goldbugs three years to fight their way to the top. Back in 1915, McKinley won the football championship. A year later, it tied with Central for the title and then in 1917, McKinley again won. Since that time Central, Cleveland, Roosevelt and Soldan have finished in front.

Most of the players on the present McKinley team reported to practice two years ago, when Norman R. D. Jones was coach. Last year Otto Rost of Kansas University was taken from Beumont and his tutelage the 1934 squad has won all four of its league engagements, defeating Cleveland, Soldan, Beumont and Central.

The probable starting eleven for the title game will consist of Walter Sander and Stillman Rouse, ends; Edgar Gilpin and Johnny Golder, tackles; De Filio and John Burge, guards; Mard Sadler, center; Red Ed Phelan, quarterback; Rich O'Connell and Bill Hawkins, halfbacks; and Julius Blanke, fullback. This team has gone through the entire campaign without more than a couple of bruises.

Worst Team Can Do Is Tie.
 The worst McKinley could do is to lose to Roosevelt and tie for the championship. A tie with the Rough Riders would still give McKinley the title, since Roosevelt already has lost to Cleveland. The Rough Riders are tied with the Carondelet eleven for second place, with decisions over Central, Beumont and Soldan.

Coach Lee R. Carlson has assembled a machine at Roosevelt that has shown that it could place. The Riders probably will line up Earl McCue or Carl Zimmerman, either ends; Bentley Jacobs and Joe McEntee at the tackles; Charles Turner and Curtis Bogash at the guards; Max Pfaff at center; Joe Szech at quarter; Bob Harle and Al Seidel at halfbacks; and Capt. Harold Schoenberg at fullback.

Blanke and Schwenk Tied.
 Julius Blanke, McKinley fullback, will have a chance to gain the honors of being the league's leading scorer. Blanke is tied with Wilson Schwenk of Beumont, which finished its season last week. Both have scored 37 points. Here's how the scorers stand:

Player	Points
Blanke, McKinley	37
Schwenk, Beumont	37
Songer, McKinley	30

In the winter of 1901-02 Norval Baptie, retired as Champion Four Years Ago Because There Was No Competition, and Continued Figure Skating.

By Harry McKanna.
 Hockey and skating enthusiasts visiting the Arena have marveled at the agility of the middle-aged man and his partner, who give exhibition nightly. They are Norval Baptie, 55, retired world champion professional speed skater, and Gladys Lamb, who in private life is Mrs. Baptie.

Baptie is a champion who was unbeatable. He retired four years ago when he found no competition in his line of sport, after reigning as king of his realm for 38 years. Of the world records hung up by Baptie in 38 years, nine of them still remain unbroken.

Baptie is proud but not boastful of his records. He thinks some of them will stand for years to come, not because he was so good in setting these marks, but because the youths of today do not live the clean life he led when he established the marks.

Born in Bethany, Ont., March 18, 1879, Baptie moved with his parents to Bathgate, N. D., 75 miles south of the Canadian border, as a baby. His father bought his first pair of skates when he was 10 years old. Skating was the only recreation in Bathgate and as the Baptie skated on the rinks that professional from the first day he entered competitive events, and collected purses ranging from $50 to $100 during his school days.

Turned Pro at 16.
 Baptie, who is of Scotch parentage, although he always has been hailed as the "Flying Frenchman" when 16 years old at that time Jack McCulloch, of Winnipeg, had just won the amateur skating championship of the world at Montreal from a field including many international stars. North Dakota turned professional and went to North Dakota and made his home there, who was hailed as a prodigy in his line.

The late John S. Johnson of Minneapolis was the world's professional skating champion when Baptie had just graduated from high school. Promoters matched the high school boy and Johnson for a series of races at Fergus Falls, Minn. Baptie beat Johnson twice at a half mile and one mile.

A big tournament was held in Minneapolis in 1897, which was won by John Nilsson. Baptie was unable to compete, but met Nilsson later in the winter and beat him easily.

Three of His World Records.
 In 1898, Baptie won three of his world records in a straightaway course. They are: 440 yards, 28:15; one-half mile, 1:00:25; and one mile, 2:08.

 LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22.—More than a hundred California football players moved to other regions this year in quest of intercollegiate football fame.

While all the precincts have not claimed more than a dozen of these California players, as many as the Rocky Mountain region and the Southwest have a few and the Northwest all that are left, which is better than half.

Princeton, Yale, Navy, Army, Temple, West Virginia and Providence college number rosters at least 15 ex-Californians. Nine members of Chicago's squad this year are from the Golden State.

Oregon State has 14; Oregon 11; Montana 5 and Idaho 4 in a fairly accurate check on the North country. Drake, Arizona, Arizona State, Denver, Nevada and Notre Dame have a few of the others that have drifted from the seemingly inexhaustible supply of grid talent from the Golden State.

Jerry Roscoe, the Yale quarterback, who threw the pass that beat Princeton, is from San Diego, Cal. High MacMillan, Princeton's fine end, is the son of a Long Beach, Cal., physician. Dave Zabriski, great Navy guard, calls Hollywood his home and Bill Suler, Army end, is from El Monte.

won the world five-mile title at Saranac Lake, N. Y., from McCulloch, Nilsson, Harley Davidson and Pete Sinnur, then the European champion. Baptie was clocked in 14:47-5 for the five miles over an eight-lap track.

On a one-fourth mile track at Montreal, the Canadian-born Scotchman hung up his one-half-mile world record mark of 1:15.

In 1918, Oscar Mathiesen of Norway, amateur champion of Europe, turned pro and came to the United States to meet the great Baptie. Mathiesen's first engagement in this country was against Baptie, which was held in Minneapolis. Norval won the half-mile event and was leading by a quarter of a lap in the three-mile race when his skates broke under him. He and Mathiesen were to race the next night, and the race was packed, but Mathiesen refused to take to the ice.

Minneapolis and Chicago saw Baptie set four of his unbroken world indoor records. They are: One-half mile, 1:15 at Minneapolis, Feb. 1, 1909.

Completed in 5000 Races.
 Baptie has competed in more than 5000 races, and was beaten only once by Everett McGowan of St. Paul, in 1923. In the second series of races the next night, Baptie turned around and took every event.

When 50 years old, Baptie proved his superiority over McGowan again, by defeating him on one-quarter mile and one-half mile at Springfield, Mass. McGowan at that time was rated as the world's fastest professional skater.

To prove that he still can skate with the best of the youngsters, Baptie covered a quarter mile last winter over a 16-lap track in 4:4 seconds. The record for the distance is 41 flat.

"The secret of my success," Baptie said, "has been a clean life and plenty of fresh air by outdoor skating, especially in the winter months."

"One reason I think my world records still stand is that I raced to win. Most of the present day skaters, except in the sprint races, until the last 100 yards and then stop. I never did."

To those who would like to skate fast, Baptie offers the following advice: "Practice a long, strong glide. Jerky irregular strokes are to be avoided. Watch some expert individual of style imitating him. The skater who falls into the habit of cutting short his stroke, except when circumstances warrant it, tires the muscles of the legs, affects his wind, and he loses the self-control of his feet. And persevere."

FLYERS TO END TRAINING FOR OPENING GAME

By the Associated Press.

Coach Alex McPherson gathered his full squad of Flyers together at the Winter Garden yesterday for a workout and will continue today trying to whip the club into condition for its first American Association game with the champion Kansas City Greyhounds at Kansas City tomorrow night.

Included in the group were Leo Carbol and Joe Matte, defense men of last year's club. McPherson, Pete Palangio, Paddy Padden, Gordy Teel, who also were with the Flyers last season, and three new players.

In addition, there were Helge Bostrum, who played last season with Oklahoma City, and was with the Chicago Black Hawks during their training period at Champaign, Ill., before the major league season began.

Bostrum, who suffered a cut which required more stitches than any man in hockey, is also one of the oldest players now active in the life begins at 40, and he is the type of player who can take it as well as dish it out.

The Flyers, in an endeavor to get a brother act to compare to the Deans of the Cardinals, are bringing in three younger brothers of theirs. They are Tom Palangio, brother of Paddy; Frank Padden, brother of Joe.

Henry will not be on hand for the first game, but likely will be here for the St. Louis opener against the Greyhounds at the Winter Garden Sunday night.

Frank Padden and Tom Palangio are fine looking young boys. In addition, there is Billy de Paul, who has played on several clubs in the Association during the past several seasons.

Murray in First Workout.
 Mickey Murray, a goalie, who went so well last season, reported yesterday for his first workout. Mick was as slender as at the close of last season, due, as he explained it, to hard work in a brewery all summer hustling beer barrels.

A contractor is rushing the work of remodeling the Winter Garden for Sunday's opener. Seats are to be placed on steel supports on playing surface to about 175 feet. The first balcony also has been remodeled with benches for the customers and plenty of standing room in the back.

It has been said that the Flyer management plans many unique entertainment features between periods, including the familiar Negro broom ball games and sack races for Negroes.

When 50 years old, Baptie proved his superiority over McGowan again, by defeating him on one-quarter mile and one-half mile at Springfield, Mass. McGowan at that time was rated as the world's fastest professional skater.

MILK WAGON DRIVERS SEEK HIGHER PAY, 40-HOUR WEEK

Present Requests at Code Hearing: Cost of Change Estimated at $28,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Milk wagon drivers yesterday asked NRA for a code to shorten working hours and their wages. Their plan was made by spokesmen for their unions, during a hearing on a proposed code for the fluid milk industry.

The labor spokesmen attacked earlier statements of the industry's representatives, that such a code would be impossible of enforcement.

Told that the proposed shortening of hours would add $28,000,000 to the nation's milk bill, Daniel J. Tobin, speaking for the International Union of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, said the consumers would share the cost gladly if they knew men were being put back to work through the shortening of hours.

The question whether the industry could stand the additional burden under present conditions was raised by Preston McKinney, of the Industrial Relations Board. McKinney said it would cost $28,000,000 to carry out Tobin's proposal to put 27,600 milk handlers back to work by shortening the work week to 40 hours.

J. B. Smith, another spokesman for labor, said men were being incapacitated under a "speed up" system the dairies were using as a means of reducing operating costs.

MODIFIED PLAN OF SELF-RULE INDIA PROPOSED

Committee Presents Recommendations to Parliament After 20 Months of Investigation.

LONG, BITTER DEBATE LIKELY ON PROPOSAL

Retention of Authority External Relations Voted—Bill to Come After Christmas.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—A modified form of self-rule for India has been proposed to the new Parliament by its joint select committee after months of investigation.

Presentation of the report yesterday, expected to cause months of bitter parliamentary debate, was followed immediately by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's motion that the Committee serve full time at this session of the Government. This, he explained, was because of the heavy legislative program, of which the item is the India bill.

The report, expected to form basis of Government-introduced legislation shortly after Christmas, proposed an all-India federal self-governing unit, with 11 provinces of British India, two of which, linked with native states, Federal system.

Some Powers Withheld.

A Governor-General, or Viceroy, would head the Federal Government. To him would be reserved "safeguards" to prevent political and financial disorders, such as power over question of defense and external relations.

The report recommended that the provinces be given their own government and constitution, similar to those in the autonomous states of the federation.

Each province would have its own legislative assembly, chosen by direct vote, while five—Madhya Pradesh, Bihar, Orissa, Bombay, Bengal and the United Provinces of A. N. W. P.—would have legislatures consisting of houses. The two new provinces would be Sind and Orissa.

The central legislature of the federation would have two chambers, their members elected by direct vote of the provinces, representatives nominated by self-ruling native states.

An alternative report presented by dissenting Labor members of the Committee of 31 urged that the Indian constitution be so framed as to enable India to reach decision status by process of internal development without recourse to the acts of Parliament.

Minority Recommendations.

The proposal that the Viceroy, in addition to his other powers, be given special responsibility for maintaining the fiscal stability and credit of the federation. It was presented by Maj. Clement Attlee and other Labor committee members, who said they recognized the need of continued safeguards, but who favored the protection of the federation from exploitation.

The Labor members strongly oppose creation of second chamber in the legislatures. Their report said that while the provinces should be allowed to "experiment" with Westminster system, the responsibility at the center should be placed mainly through committee of the legislature on the lines of the constitution of Ceylon. It argued there should be only one legislative chamber at the center, in which Labor should be given 26 seats instead of 10, as proposed in the majority report.

Commercial Exploitation.

Britain became interested in India originally because of trade. East India Co. was chartered in 1600 to exploit commerce there. The company had wide powers. Queen Victoria added India to British possessions. She took over the nation's Empress, by proclamation in 1858.

Indian provinces now have their own legislatures and decide many questions. A central legislature for the entire country aids the government of the viceroy. The Rt. Hon. Freeman Freeman-Thomas, Earl of Willingdon, Viceroy of the crown.

India has made little advance the way of native co-operation. Each faith has wanted to control others to its way of thinking. Hindus want an Indian republic under their own domination. Many groups have been fighting for national freedom, chief of which is the Indian National Congress, organized in 1885 by Allan Octave Hume, retired member of the Indian Civil Service.

Outstanding in self-government activities has been Mahatma Gandhi, known for his non-violent methods.

The DAILY WASHINGTON

MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The plan to put the New Deal on a "master minds" of the party is being hatched.

The plan is to hold a national "master minds" rally in Chicago about Dec. 15—just before Congress convenes. Alfred E. Smith and William E. Borah are the proposed rhetorical Big Berthas of the occasion.

With these two stellar performers commanding the headlines, the league would be able to get over a flood of anti-administration propaganda—demands for the end of the New Deal experiments, in preparation for the Government spending.

Preparations for the proposed event are being pushed under the cover of secrecy.

This is done for two reasons. First, to obtain all the advantages that may be derived from springing it as a surprise. Second, to keep the date of the meeting open until the last possible moment, so that it can be held after the President makes his already announced "radio talk."

Overtures already have been made to Borah and Smith proposing their participation.

New Deal Forums.

MEANWHILE, the Administration, without any knowledge of the "master minds" maneuver, is planning a forum of its own.

Its purpose, however, is entirely different. Behind the plan is the idea of the President and of John H. Studebaker, new Commissioner of Education, to promote adult education.

To this end they expect to establish a series of "Town Halls," or open forums, throughout the country. The first of these probably will be in Washington, and one of the New Deal's chief critics and a rival candidate against Franklin Roosevelt—Norman Thomas—will be invited to speak.

The President personally is most enthusiastic over the idea.

Family Politics.

NOT MANY people know it, but Mrs. Adolf Berle, wife of a prominent member of the Brain Trust, is also the niece of Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Berle, formerly Miss Beatrice

Bend Bishop, was virtually ostracized by her family when she married Berle. Her father and mother, members of a prominent Boston family, objected strenuously when she shunned Back Bay society and insisted upon going in for high-brow studies and Adolf Berle, then a Harvard prodigy.

And when they were married, no member of Miss Bishop's family was present to give her away.

Big Business Co-Operation.

BIG business is going further than merely passing resolutions endorsing the New Deal. Some of its leaders actually are scratching around looking for advisers who can interpret Roosevelt policies for them and secure for them the greatest degree of co-operation from the administration.

This apparently is the aim of the mighty House of Morgan.

Only a few days after the Nov. 6 elections had given Roosevelt the greatest confidence vote in history, Russell Leffingwell, Morgan partner, was busy looking for new advisers to act between the bankers and the administration.

Merry-Go-Round.

D. JAMES DORAN, famous as a dictator of the Treasury's prohibition activity during dry days, has recently received an increase in salary. For one year he has been representative for the distilling interests in Washington.

The Government Printing Office employs 400 proof readers. During publication of the Congressional Record, when Congress is in session, they are all needed. Congressmen say the Government Printing Office turns out better grammar than the Government. The office of Congress. Eight Representatives from New Mexico have now tried to win promotion to the Senate from their State. Representative Chavez was the ninth to try, and fail. Apparently there is a jinx on this form of promotion. The first to proclaim Roosevelt as the great friend of business after the elections was Dan Roper, South Carolina Secretary of Commerce. A brief interval after Franklin D. Roosevelt had advertised his sixty-fifth street residence in New York for rent, a similar sign appeared on the house of his cousin, Alice Longworth.

Symphony to Begin Series of Broadcasts Monday Night.

The first of a series of half-hour concerts by the Symphony orchestra, under direction of Vladimir Golschmann, will be broadcast over a national hook-up from station KSD Monday night at 10:30 o'clock. Continuing for 10 weeks, the concerts will be broadcast from the stage of the Municipal Auditorium opera house. Compositions of Mozart will be the principal feature of the first program.

FOURTH ANNUAL HOSMER HALL HORSE SHOW TOMORROW NIGHT

More Than 75 Entries Listed for 12 Events to Be Held at Missouri Stables.

The fourth annual Hosmer Hall student horse show will open tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at the Missouri Stables, 5200 Berthold avenue, under the direction of the Hosmer Hall Athletic Association.

More than 75 entries have been received for the show, in which members of riding classes from Webster Groves High School, Lovett Academy and Visitation Academy, as well as members of the Hosmer Hall classes, will participate. Independent riders of college age have also been entered in several events.

There will be 12 events, including exhibition drill and novice, intermediate and advance class demonstrations. A "backward class," in which the riders will be mounted backward, potato races and pair classes also are scheduled.

SCOTTISH RITE REUNION OPENS

Class of 50 to Receive Degrees at Four-Day Meeting.

The seventy-eighth reunion of Scottish Rite Freemasons began yesterday at Scottish Rite Cathedral, 9637 Lindell boulevard. A class of about 50 will receive degrees, from the fourth to thirty-second, inclusive. The four-day meeting will close Saturday with a dinner, entertainment and dance at the cathedral.

STORY OF 12 YEARS IN SIAM AS FISH EXPERT

Dr. Hugh McCormick Smith, Former Head of U. S. Bureau, Visiting Here.

Although he fishes very little himself, Dr. Hugh McCormick Smith, now visiting in St. Louis, has been identified with fisheries for 48 years. He has just rounded out 12 years as adviser to the Siamese Government on fisheries.

He has now quit that job and is on his way back to his home in Washington. In St. Louis he is visiting his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Vincent Cowdry, 33 Crestwood drive, Clayton. Dr. Cowdry is professor of cytology at Washington University Medical School.

In Siam Dr. Smith was in complete charge of the fishing industry, next to rice growing the country's largest trade. A large part of his work was assembling and codifying the various types of fish and when he left there he had built up a file of the names of more than 15,000 tropical fish.

He had little trouble getting his fishing measures made into law, since they merely required the King's approval. One of his last bills was to prevent Japanese fishermen from encroaching in Siamese waters.

The king is a "very democratic" monarch, Dr. Smith said, and desires to do what is best for his people, even to the point of his recent offer to abdicate.

Before going to Siam Dr. Smith was Commissioner of United States Fisheries. He entered the Bureau of Fisheries in 1886 and was its head from 1913 to 1922. One of his acts was to make St. Louis instead of London the chief market for Alaskan seal furs. Now 69 years old, he will devote part of his time to writing monographs on tropical fish.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

PINK and white chrysanthemums will decorate the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Clay Vaughan, 7054 Washington avenue, for the debut reception late this afternoon of their daughter, Miss Mildred Weller Vaughan.

Mrs. Vaughan and her daughter will be assisted in receiving by the former's sister, Mrs. Carl S. Meyer of Louisville, Ky. They will stand in the living room before the mantel which will be banked with the pink and white blossoms. More of the flowers will be arranged in vases and baskets about the room. Yellow and bronze chrysanthemums will adorn the tea table which will be lighted by tall ivory tapers in silver candelabra. Punch will be served in the sun room.

Miss Vaughan will wear a gown of white and silver lame, designed with a slightly draped neckline at the front and deep V at the back. The normal waistline is marked by a narrow belt fastened at the back by an emerald colored and crystal double clip. Another clip of the same stones trims the draped neckline at the front. Her skirt falls in a short train and her sandals are of green and silver. She will carry a bouquet of yellow roses.

Miss Vaughan wore the gown when she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball earlier in the season. Mrs. Vaughan will wear an afternoon gown of rough black crepe, the bodice of which is made of turquoise blue crepe. Mrs. Meyer will be crowned in black velvet combined with black crepe. Both will wear shoulder corsages of gardenias.

The following young women will serve: Miss Edna Birge, Miss Jeanne Milam, Miss Elsie Megginson, Miss Margaret Allen Marquis, Miss Betty Hall, Miss Althea Hickley, Miss Betty King, Miss Susan Flint, Miss Betty Noland, Miss Dorothy Dobson, Miss Jane Scholz, Miss Mary Harford, Miss Susan Chaplin, Miss Lois Simcoe and Mrs. Jean Coleman. The following of Mrs. Vaughan's friends will assist: Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt, Mrs. Edwin B. Sherzer, Mrs. Hugh Murray French, Mrs. Arthur H. Birge, Mrs. Charles King McClure and Mrs. Robert K. Withrow.

Miss Vaughan is a graduate of Moreland place, and a senior at Washington University and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, 13 Moreland place, and their daughter, Miss Alita Davis, have issued cards for a dinner dance to be given at the St. Louis Country Club Saturday night, Dec. 8, in honor of Miss Kate Davis Pulitzer and Miss Gladys McCreary, debutantes of the season.

Invitations have also been received from Mrs. Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place, for a dinner dance to be given Wednesday night, Dec. 5, at the St. Louis Woman's Club to honor Miss Roberta Pierce. About a hundred and fifty guests have been invited including a group of the debutantes and their escorts.

A debutante luncheon was given at the St. Louis Country Club today by Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Moss of Upper Lauder road and her sister, Mrs. Chauncey H. Clarke of the Kingsbury Apartments in honor of Miss Betty Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Hall, 5705 Catalpa avenue, and Miss Anne Beck Woolsey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ross A. Woolsey, 6350 Waterman avenue.

The luncheon table will be decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. The following debutantes will be present: Miss Frances Bates, Miss Marjorie Echter, Miss Virginia Lee Burns, Miss Barbara Brodhead, Miss Marjorie Chrysler, Miss Florence Curry, Miss Martha Ann Day, Miss Anne Francis, Miss Louise Kennard, Miss Katherine and Miss Adelaide Mahaffey, Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe, Miss Atwood McVoy, Miss Betty Noland, Miss Roberta Pierce, Miss Ellen Stokes, Miss Stella Cartwright and Miss Jane Wells. Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Woolsey will also be guests at the luncheon.

Miss Jane Connert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll Connert, 4422 Lindell boulevard, will be hostess at a cocktail party late this afternoon at the home of her parents in honor of her cousin, Miss Antoinette Schlafly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schlafly, 4474 Westminister place, and Miss Helen Franklin, daughter of Mrs. Elkin L. Franklin, 5301 Waterman avenue. There will be 75 guests at the party.

Mrs. A. Shapleigh Boyd, 4623 Pershing avenue, will give a tea at her home this afternoon in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. A. Shapleigh Boyd Jr., 412 North Union boulevard. Until her wedding last April, Mrs. Boyd was Miss Amy Frances Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rand Jones of Teaneck, N. J., and Masons Island, Mystic, Conn.

Matrons will take the place of young women at debutante age at mannequins at a Thanksgiving party to be given by the Junior League for members, their mothers and special members at the tea room. The party will be given next Tuesday afternoon at the league headquarters, 4914 Maryland avenue. The party was planned at the request of the mothers. The fashion show will be held during the luncheon hour beginning at 1 o'clock, and later there will be music, special entertainment and favors.

The models will be Mrs. Benjamin G. Chapman Jr., Mrs. Oliver L. Garrison Jr., Mrs. Benjamin H.

Charles, Mrs. James L. Ford Jr., Mrs. Walter Fischel and Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom.

The entertainment by members of the league will include songs sung in costumes by Miss Martha Love; a scene from Pinnocchio, the children's play to be given by the league, Dec. 1 and 8, in the Municipal Auditorium; a skit from a new book to be read by Mrs. John Crago, and a piano program by Miss Dorothy Lund. Those taking part in the Pinnocchio scene are Miss Christine Jones, Mrs. Francis D. Seward Jr., Mrs. H. Torrey Foster, Mrs. Whipple Van Ness Jones, and Mrs. Robert Cochran. Miss Emily Lewis is in charge of the play, and Miss Jaquelin Chapman is chairman of the tea room.

The card committee of the St. Louis Woman's Club will entertain the members and their guests at a Thanksgiving dinner and bridge party tonight. The tables will be decorated with chrysanthemums and lighted by ivory tapers.

Among those entertaining will be Mrs. Charles White Scudder, Mrs. Thomas H. Conn, Mrs. Herbert L. Parker, Mrs. Joseph N. Gettys, Mrs. Emil Mallinckrodt, Mrs. Charles D. Ashcroft, Mrs. Ralph D. Griffin, Mrs. James B. Hill, Mrs. George M. Burbach, Mrs. Joseph E. Irwin, Mrs. John S. Wood, Mrs. James C. Blythe, Mrs. J. Scott Porter, Mrs. Lewis E. Stuart, Mrs. Eugene B. Stinde, Mrs. John M. Wood and Mrs. Louis G. Kregel.

An informal breakfast party was given yesterday morning by Miss Cecil Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stockton Mitchell, 4369 Westminister place, in honor of Miss Jane Polk Forder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carver Forder, 7042 Delmar boulevard. The wedding of Miss Forder and Gray Carroll Strubling, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Keith Strubling, 230 Blackmer place, Webster Groves, will take place Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Church of the Ascension.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Shillington Jr. of Algonquinwood, Webster

Groves, gave a buffet supper at their home last night.

Tonight Miss Suzanne Mackay, who will be one of Miss Forder's bridesmaids, will give a dinner for the bridal party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Castlemack Mackay, 3693 Lindell boulevard.

A buffet supper, preceding the rehearsal, will be given tomorrow night by Miss Elizabeth Strubling, sister of the prospective bridegroom.

The Young People's Division of the Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will meet tomorrow morning at 11:45 o'clock at the Junior League club rooms. Miss Martha Love will have charge of the program and will speak on this week's program to be given by the orchestra.

The November sewing day for the children of the Goodwill Nursery has been advanced a week from the usual time, owing to the Thanksgiving holiday. The members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Goodwill Industries will meet at the nursery, 1910 North Thirteenth street, tomorrow to spend the day providing clothing for the children. Luncheon will be served at noon.

Prof. Davis Edwards of Chicago will come to St. Louis to give two morning readings next month in the ballroom of Hotel Statler for the benefit of the Memorial Home for the Aged. He will give Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness," Friday morning, Dec. 7, at 10:30 o'clock, and Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland," Saturday, Dec. 8, at the same hour.

More than 600 women will be patronesses, and many of them will entertain at luncheon parties following the readings.

The home, at 2609 South Grand boulevard, has celebrated its fifty-third year. Mrs. Clay E. Jordan is president and Miss Etta A. Jordan, treasurer.

Edgar M. Harber Dies.

By the Associated Press. TRENTON, Mo., Nov. 22.—Edgar M. Harber, 80 years old, internal revenue collector for Western Missouri from 1915 to 1918, and later city counselor in Kansas City until 1925, died here yesterday.

Build Strength To Ward Off Colds

If any member of your family is recovering from a recent illness, this is a time for extra care. Resistance is at a low ebb, vitality is lowered, they do not have the reserve strength to resist colds and other infections. This is the time to take Father John's Medicine. It has proved its worth in checking colds, and as a body builder—a tonic for weak, run-down people—an aid to healthy vigor. Father John's Medicine is a scientific combination of valuable ingredients, very rich in Vitamins A and D, which are absolutely essential to health. It is good for all the family and is free from alcohol or drugs. Time tested in institutions and thousands of homes.

Folks seem to like it

yes, and here's why—

We know that smoking a pipe is different from smoking a cigar or cigarette... and in trying to find the best tobacco suited for pipes...

We found out that the best tobacco for use in a pipe grows down in the Blue Grass Section of Kentucky, and it is called White Burley.

There is a certain kind of this tobacco that is between the tobacco used for cigarettes and the kind that is used for chewing tobacco.

This is the kind of tobacco we use, year after year, for Granger Rough Cut.

We got the right pipe tobacco, made it by the right process... Wellman's Process... we cut it right... rough cut.

The big Granger flakes have to burn cool and they certainly last longer and never gum the pipe.

amount the United States asked for and twice the allotment suggested for Russia. Any quota allotted France would require corresponding sacrifices by overseas exporters, notably the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina. The delegates of these four nations insisted that acreage restriction must be settled before quotas can be discussed.

Jean Chavante, the French delegate, issued a statement on the difficulties encountered by France because of its large wheat surplus.

Report of Commission.

A discouraging outlook for wheat exporting nations during the next two years was given by the commission. It predicted the annual world demand for exported wheat would remain at 600,000,000 bushels at least until August, 1935, in a statement reviewing conditions.

Pointing to the nationalistic policies of importing countries, the commission said 26 nations had increased their acreage during the last year.

"The world demand for improved wheat in recent years has declined 20 to 25 per cent below what was looked upon as normal prior to 1932," the commission said.

"As both the trend of population growth and that of per capita consumption of wheat are declining in many countries, it is clear that any appreciable increase in world demand is largely dependent upon a reversal of the trend of wheat production in importing countries."

Decreases in 1934 acreage were reported for the "big four" wheat countries as follows: Australia, 13.5

per cent; United States, 11.8; Canada, 6.9, and Argentina, 6.

The commission has postponed a final decision on extension of the wheat pact for two years on the insistence of Canada and Argentina, which refuse to act until questions of acreage reduction and export quotas are settled.

Acre Yields May Be Factor.

Concerning the demands of importing countries the commission said: "Until there is a fundamental change in the wheat policy of importing countries there is no prospect of a considerable increase in demand for wheat unless yields per acre prove to be of low average."

Owing to the present policy of some importing countries of protecting—almost regardless of cost—their wheat growers against foreign competition and a sharp upward trend of unit yields, the commission's statement continued, "there seems to be no good reason for anticipating in the next few years an annual European demand for imported wheat in excess of 450,000,000 bushels."

"As a result of Japan's policy to become self-sufficing," the statement said, "and of the great expansion of wheat growing in several European countries, it is probable the annual exports from European countries will in the near future be more than about 150,000,000 bushels."

Concerning the 1935 prospects, the statement said:

"The official estimate of areas sown to winter wheat in the United States will not be issued until December. The average private estimate is 43,000,000 acres or 5 per cent greater than the official estimates of areas sown in the last year."

"Weather conditions on the whole have been favorable for planting winter wheat in European countries. There will probably be little change in acreage sown in most of the importing countries."

"The area sown to wheat in European importing countries in 1934 was about 4,500,000 acres greater than in 1928, when the wheat crisis set in. This increase in wheat acreage during the crisis alone has met the annual displacement of about 100,000,000 bushels of imported wheat."

Disparity of Prices.

"The difficulties of acreage reduction in European countries are suggested by the following price relationships which existed in mid-October:

"In Great Britain, the price guaranteed by the Government to producers was 77.8 gold cents a bushel as compared with 38.3 for Argentine wheat.

"In Germany, the legally enforced fixed price for producers in the Berlin region was 128 gold cents as compared with Argentine barus wheat at 42.4 gold cents.

"In France, the legal minimum price in the region of Paris for the 1934 crop was 118.6 gold cents compared with French wheat c. i. f. (cost, insurance and freight), Liverpool or London, 39 gold cents."

WOMAN HELD FOR ALLEGED FRAUD RELEASED ON BONDS

Bogus Check Charge Also Placed Against Mrs. Betty Gregory.

An additional charge of issuing a bogus check was placed yesterday against Mrs. Betty Gregory, who was arrested Tuesday at Clayton on a warrant charging her with obtaining money under false pretenses. She was released last night on bonds totaling $6000.

The charges grow out of Mrs. Gregory's dealings with Miss Estelle Lill, daughter of former Sheriff Al G. Lill, who is now head of the Missouri Crime Prevention Bureau, and foreman of the present County Grand Jury. Miss Lill charges Mrs. Gregory obtained $2000 from her, representing that she needed the money to settle a $500,000 estate.

The check, for $500, was one of two Mrs. Gregory is said to have given Miss Lill in repayment of the loans. Both were returned by the banks on which they were drawn, marked "no account." Mrs. Gregory, 29 years old, said she lived in the 4000 block of Delmar boulevard.

GREAT GRANDMOTHER WILL BE BRIDE OF FLORIDA MAN

Mrs. Ida Louise Miles to Be Married Tuesday to Alphonse Hearin in Webster Groves.

Mrs. Ida Louise Miles, widow of Dr. Horine Miles and a great-grandmother, will be married to Leonidas Alphonse Hearin, 67 years old, a retired sales representative, of Hollywood, Fla., at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert H. Bailey, 119 West Cedar avenue, Webster Groves.

There will be no attendants. The guests will be relatives and close friends. The Rev. David M. Skilling of Webster Groves Presbyterian Church will perform the ceremony.

Mrs. Miles, who resides at 4 Mason avenue, Webster Groves, met Hearin three years ago while visiting her sister in Hollywood. Hearin is on the way here from Florida, where they will spend the winter. Mrs. Miles' 21-year-old grandson, Miles Bailey, residing near Kirkwood, has a four-month-old son.

Mrs. Miles is the daughter of the late L. J. Peck, wholesale grocer. Dr. Miles, who practiced in Webster Groves about 30 years, died in 1929.

NRA TEST TO DETERMINE IF U. S. MAY BUY FORDS

Contract for Truck Awarded to Maryland Dealer Who Certifies
He Complies With Code.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Interior Department today awarded a contract for a Ford truck to the Northwest Motor Co. of Bethesda, Md., a Ford dealer. The firm submitted a certificate of NRA code compliance with its bid to supply 15 trucks to the department.

The certificate was said to be on the standard Government form, "with no strings attached," and Comptroller-General McCarl was reported to have ruled that the award of the contract was legal.

Officials said the compliance certificate was not one from the Ford company itself, but merely from the dealer and that a contract was signed for a single truck at this time in order to bring the controversial compliance question once again before the NRA. The Ford company has not signed the automobile code.

Soviet Envoy to Return to U. S.
MOSCOW, Nov. 22.—Ambassador Troianovsky, Soviet Envoy to the United States, will leave Moscow late this month by the Trans-Siberian Railway on his return to Washington. En route he will spend a week in Japan. Mrs. Troianovsky, who is now in America, will join her husband in Honolulu. They are expected to reach Washington early in January.

ANOTHER CUT-RATE BARBER SHOP IN ALTON BOMBED

Second Instance of Kind This Month; Door, Windows, Furnishings Damaged.

Attacks on cut-price barber shops in Alton continued last night, when a bomb was exploded at the front door of a shop at 2610 State street, operated by John Turner. The door, windows and interior furnishings were damaged.

A shop operated by Emil Schmoeller at 207 West Fourth street was bombed Nov. 13, and since then bricks have been thrown through windows of others, all of which have adopted a price of 25 cents for a hair cut and 15 cents for a shave, police said.

A code price 50 and 25 cents had been scheduled, but barbers began to cut when business volume fell off.

$12,500 Damage Verdict in Crash.
A verdict for $12,500 was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Peary's court in favor of George L. Gray of East St. Louis against the Hayes Transfer & Storage Co., 112 South Ninth street. Gray had sued for $20,000 damages on account of injuries suffered on the night of March 23, 1933, when his automobile struck a parked truck belonging to the company on Missouri avenue, near Seventeenth street, East St. Louis. He alleged that parking lights of the truck were not on.

WASHINGTON U. DEBATERS DEFEAT LONDON TEAM

Audience Supports View That International Trade Is Not Essential to Prosperity.

The Washington University debating team of David Horton and Richard Arens defeated the University of London team last night at Graham Memorial Chapel on the question: "Resolved, That the Resumption of International Trade Is Essential for the Return of Prosperity." The Washington University debaters, upholding the negative, were awarded the decision by vote of the audience.

David W. Scholes and Joel Hirschfeld, representing the University of London, bitterly assailed their opponents' arguments as typical American points of view, saying they were considering the welfare of the United States before world peace and security. The English debaters disregarded all time limitations for argument and rebuttal, and their caustic remarks and witticisms were entertaining.

Scholes and Hirschfeld are making a debate tour of American universities. Horton is a senior in the Washington University School of Liberal Arts, and Arens is a junior in the school of law.

Report Bitterly Assailed by Indian Vernacular Papers.

By the Associated Press.
CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 22.—The Indian vernacular press bitterly criticizes the joint select committee's report on Indian Government reform.

The Anrita Bazar Patrika said the recommendations made "the estrangement between the two countries complete and readjustment of their relations impossible." It said the report was "infinitely more reactionary than the white paper (the popular name for the British Government plans formulated after round table conferences in London at which Indian representatives were present), denying as it does responsibility for all times to come."

The Forward, extreme organ of the Indian National Congress, appeals to India to "fling the report back in the teeth of those having the audacity to offer it" to "demonstrate that Indians have sufficient self-respect to answer the insult."

The Anand Bazar Patrika, leading Bengali daily, said the report would be rejected even by moderates, would provoke discord and provincial jealousies and showed the bankrupt state of British statesmanship.

Moslem newspapers, on the other hand, seemed disposed to accept the report as a reasonable compromise.

MRS. RINGLING MOTION DENIED
Notice of Divorce Action by Publication Held Sufficient.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 22.—The Florida Supreme Court yesterday denied a re-hearing on its previous ruling that publication in a newspaper was sufficient notice to Mrs. Emily Ringling, the circus man, had sued for divorce.

The Court held there was suitable showing that Ringling did not know his wife was in Florida at the time and that this was adequate compliance with the laws on constructive service by publication. The case goes back to the Sarasota County Circuit Court, where her motion to dismiss the divorce action was denied.

WHAT'S THE TEMPERATURE OF YOUR KITCHEN?

More specifically, what's the temperature of your ice box? Can you count on it to keep foods sweet and pure? Can you buy in quantity when you see a bargain? Can you pour from a milk bottle without even a single doubting sniff? With electric refrigeration you can do all those things, and many more besides. But the electricity an electric refrigerator uses, in the average St. Louis home, costs only thirty-five cents a week.

A nickel won't buy much these days. But one nickel a day is all it costs to use an electric refrigerator in the average home in St. Louis—where electricity is cheap.

HELPS WHOLE FAMILIES

Attention, MOTHERS, to what every doctor knows to be a fact, and what they say to avoid

If you have children who are occasionally constipated, you should know this.

If you are "not yourself" because of a constipated condition, don't blame it on your blood condition, or your age, but first try this treatment that safely relieves sluggishness in children or adults.

The Proper Treatment

You can't safely relieve the bowels with any medicine if you can't regulate the dose. To regulate dosage, you should have a liquid laxative. When necessary to repeat, you can gradually reduce the dose. And that is the secret of safe relief from a sluggish, constipated condition at any age.

A liquid laxative can be measured. Its action can be thus controlled. If properly made, of such natural laxative elements as senna and cascara, it forms no habit—even in the youngest child. And such a laxative will help the bowels to help themselves.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative containing herbs, active senna, and cascara, and is the one widely used. You can always obtain it at any drug store. Why not make the "liquid test" which has attracted so much attention of late? It helps nearly everyone who tries it. It may make you feel better overnight. The children will like it, too; Syrup Pepsin has a delightful taste.

If you will risk sixty cents to discover the safe, pleasant action of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, we believe bowel worries will be over for your household.

RECEIVER PUT IN CHARGE OF DAWES' OLD BANK

State Auditor Alleges That Assets Carried on Books Are Erroneous.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The Central Republic Trust Co., a heavy debtor of the RFC and formerly controlled by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, is in the hands of a receiver.

William L. O'Connell of Chicago was designated receiver by Circuit Judge John Prystalski yesterday following a charge by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett that assets carried on its books were erroneous.

Examination of the bank's books Tuesday night on Barrett's orders preceded his charge as a sequel to the filing of suits in both Federal and State courts by the RFC in an attempt to collect $14,000,000 double liability from stockholders of the bank.

The trust company still owes nearly $60,000,000 of the $80,000,000 it borrowed from the RFC when Dawes, former Vice-President of the United States and who resigned as chairman of the RFC several months before the loan was obtained, headed the bank's board.

The examination disclosed, Barrett said in his petition, that the company had bills payable totaling $58,336,760.70, that assets carried on the books were erroneous and did not correctly reflect the true value and that the value of certain resources did not equal the amounts for which they were carried. The condition of the capital stock has become impaired, the petition charged, and "cannot be made good."

"Freeze-Up" Weather Predicted

Get your EVEREADY PRESTONE now!

THE GUARANTEED ANTI-FREEZE

● Play safe this Winter. Put in Eveready Prestone TODAY. One shot will protect you through to next Spring. Even if you run into a spell of warm weather Eveready Prestone won't boil away.*

Don't confuse Eveready Prestone with either glycerine or alcohol. At $2.95 a gallon Eveready Prestone is your most economical buy. It's ALL ANTI-FREEZE... no water. All car manufacturers approve it. Guaranteed by National Carbon Company, Inc., to provide all-Winter, two-way protection against both freeze-up and rust.

*Make the Nose-Test

Eveready Prestone, truly non-evaporating, is absolutely odorless. "Boil-away" anti-freezes, on the other hand, can always be identified by a noticeable odor. Regardless of special "treatments" claimed to decrease evaporation, they will evaporate rapidly whenever the engine is running at high speeds.

FIND YOUR CAR ON THIS CHART

IMPORTANT! The price per gallon of an anti-freeze means nothing unless you know how many gallons you will need during the Winter. You can't get that information on a boil-away anti-freeze—you don't know how many gallons you will need. But you can get it for Eveready Prestone... and here it is. See how reasonably you can get two-way protection all Winter long against both freeze-up and rust with one shot of Eveready Prestone—one shot because it won't boil off, no matter how warm the weather gets between the cold snaps. First cost is last cost—no trips back for more.

Marion Davies Quits Her Job And Takes Bungalow With Her; Kathleen Burke Comes Back

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.

IF any one thinks Marion Davies is not really moving, bag and baggage from the MGM lot to Warners one has only to see the activities around her bungalow at the former studio. Marion offered to sell the bungalow and its furnishings to Metro, but demanded $50,000 in real money for the outfit. She was told to take it with her and that is just what she is doing. The building was lifted from its foundations and jacked up to a height of 20 feet so that it could be boosted over the studio wall, none of the gates being large enough to let it through and Metro declining, under the circumstances, to knock down any part of the barrier. Once out of the lot it will be wheeled many miles to a new resting place on the Warner lot. There might be a short cut through the mountains by way of Laurel Canyon for a less pretentious affair but not for the Davies bungalow so it will come into town, dodging trolley wires when possible, and then wend its painful—and expensive—way to Burbank, where the Warners have their plant. It's all a sort of spite affair but it is costing Miss Davies, or someone, a lot of money. Anyway she can point with pride to the fact that the move is putting a lot of men to work.

IT looks like the height of something or other but Bill Powell's studio gravely announces that "Brownie," the Daschund which he gave Carole Lombard a couple of years ago will go over to his house to spend Thanksgiving day. It seems that in the divorce agreement it was mentioned that papa was to have the dog on all holidays.

THEY'RE still going after Charles Dickens out here, the studios having been told that he was quite a writer. Universal is the latest and this week began work on a screen dramatization of his unfinished story, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." At one time or another a good many writers have tried to really catch the Dickens' idea successfully. This time Universal took a good aim, securing John L. Balderston, the English playwright and critic whose writings, during a stay in America some years ago, appeared in the Post-Dispatch, and Gladys Unger, whose opera, "Beau Brummell," was seen in Forest Park, to solve the mystery. Claude Rains is to play the title role.

KATHLEEN BURKE is in pictures again. Kathleen was the winner, a year ago, of one of those nation-wide contests put on by a studio to discover the perfect Panther Woman or something of the sort and saw her name lighting before she knew anything about acting at all. She snatched for a moment at movie fame with a role in "Island of Lost Souls" and then, like most contest winners, dropped out of sight all together. Few know she has been the ballyhooed "Miss Burke" but she didn't click and the studio lost interest in her. Now she is back in Hollywood again and has been given another chance. This time she will have the only female role in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

IN OUR set in Hollywood—Charley Chan just can't be killed off by desperate crooks. His next appearance will be in "Charley Chan in Paris." Warner Oland will play Verney, the course, and as usual. Another mystery meller soon to see the light of the screen is "Recipe for Murder," with Edmund Lowe doing the dirty work. "One Night Stand," a musical, will be Ben Bernie's film comeback vehicle. Work begins on "Food of Love," for Margaret Sullivan. . . . Zoe got the title from the line by Shakespeare, "Music be the food of love, play on." It is pointed to settle down and make her return to the films in "The Goose and the Gander." . . . Her first picture since her marriage to Adolphe Menjou. . . . And George Burns and Gracie Allen will get back into the game next month when they start work in "Win a Little." . . . Elissa Landi is to really sing in "All the King's Horses." . . . In "Enter Madame," an opera singer's voice was ghosted as hers and the illusion was so very clever. . . . So she will roll her own from now on.

HOLLYWOOD appears to have misunderstood Douglas Fairbanks' reasons for disposing of his film business holdings in England. It is pointed to settle down and make her return to the films in "The Goose and the Gander." . . . Her first picture since her marriage to Adolphe Menjou. . . . And George Burns and Gracie Allen will get back into the game next month when they start work in "Win a Little." . . . Elissa Landi is to really sing in "All the King's Horses." . . . In "Enter Madame," an opera singer's voice was ghosted as hers and the illusion was so very clever. . . . So she will roll her own from now on.

More Fun for the Youngsters
If a little gum arabic is added to the soapy water the youngster is using for bubbles, it will give the bubbles an elasticity and make them tough enough to roll about the floor for a few minutes.

Hand crocheted evening frocks are among the most ravishing of the Fall gowns for formal wear. Virginia Reid, RKO screen player, wears this stunning creation in hand crocheted coral yarn over a shimmering white satin slip.

Some in Britain and Japan are agitated by rumors that the United States will "extend its fortified States in the Pacific Ocean." Great Britain is fortifying Singapore with energy, establishing there a fighting base as useful in controlling Asia as a policeman's gun pointed at the stomach of a criminal.

But, that Uncle Sam should fortify Guam, establishing there, as he should do, a great air base, with another in the Philippines, seems quite unthinkable, in Europe.

What right, Europe asks, has the United States to display international intelligence, instead of continuing to receive instructions from other countries, as we did at the Washington conference?

Vanilla Parfait
Boil together until it forms a thick sirup a good half cup sugar and one-half cup water. When cool add the well-beaten yolks of six eggs.

Our universities are doing their part toward reviving the blown glass art. Those interesting cigarette holders of crystal which are shown in the gift shops came from the laboratories of Princeton, so I'm told. A dainty bird is posed on top of the holder which is quite long and exceedingly slender.

Individual Hangers
It is a good thought to keep a supply of clothes hangers with names written on them of each child in the family. It makes a little game of hanging up their clothes and avoids much pressing by mother.

When making brown stew cook enough for two meals and vary the return by putting the stew in a pastry-lined casserole and spreading the crust over the top.

Try a little grated orange rind in flavoring the cottage pudding, then serve orange sauce with it.

Glass Gadgets for the Home Include Numerous Accessories

By SYLVIA

THE increasing interest in glass furnishings for the home may be a hint that glass houses will be some day be the rule. Lamps, liqueur sets, cigarette boxes and even book-ends now are being made of crystal, or at least have some crystal in their construction. Boudoir lamps, typical of the trend in lighting, have bowls that are replicas of the old-fashioned cut-glass salt and pepper shakers. A square mirror plaque covers the chromium metal that supplies the base. Shades are of clear de lune with silver trimmings.

Pottery shells are continuing popular but they have some new competition from the ones that are made of glass. A most unique effect is created by iridescent glass designed into a twisted vase. Another novelty in shell formation has a milk white appearance.

A tricky little gadget created to improve the looks as well as the taste of champagne is made of clear glass and has prongs in a variety of different colors. This little fork-like device is to be inserted in the liquid and the handle twisted between your hands with the object of stimulating more and bigger bubbles.

Two little glass balls of different colors are appearing on some of the smartest luncheon tables. One holds the pepper and the other the salt. To season your food, you shake these little gadgets and the condiment pours out from the bottom. Swirling decorations of frosted glass appear on the colored surface.

To add a Christmas flair to your home, you should invest in some red Bohemian glass. A striking liqueur bottle will deserve the place of honor on the buffet while vases and bowls of matching design may grace your dining or console table. These pieces are very heavy in weight but have a light appearance because of their graceful shape.

Love Always Leads One On To More Love

Even Though in Vain It Makes Life Braver and More Beautiful.

By Elsie Robinson

LOVE always pays. Love is always the biggest investment you can make—the greatest adventure you can undertake. But, you protest, "that isn't so. There are people who shouldn't love—people you've no right to love. And there are people who are unworthy of love. They'll cheat and betray you . . . impose upon you . . . go off and forget you and leave you broken-hearted. Love like that doesn't pay."

Yes, it does. Love ALWAYS pays. No one ever loved without being the richer and wiser for that experience. And that is true regardless of the other person's responses. FOR THE VALUE OF LOVE DOESN'T LIE IN WHAT IT DOES TO THE OTHER PERSON, OR IN WHAT HE DOES TO YOU . . . BUT IN WHAT LOVE DOES TO YOU, YOURSELF.

That's a simple fact—yet few of us realize it or have the courage to admit it. Most of us judge love by the loved one's reaction. Are we petted, flattered, showered with gifts—shown adoring consideration? Then we conclude love is a success. Love pays—if it ends like that. But suppose it doesn't end like that? Suppose the one we love does not return that love? Or repays it with indifference and unkindness? Then, we cry, love's a farce—a tragedy. We've been fools to love. We've been tricked.

We're wrong. Love never tricked a human heart. You may trick yourself by expecting things you have no right to expect. You've no right to expect another person to understand you. You have no right to possess another life. Above all, you've no right to make another person responsible for your happiness. You have no right to expect any of these things—and if you insist upon expecting them, you're bound to be hurt.

But if you're willing to love for the sake of loving, knowing that love is its own reward, you'll never be disappointed. For then, no matter how things turn out, you'll always be the better for the bargain. Is the loved one cruel, unfaithful? Then that's HIS bad luck. And there's probably little you can do about it, save to protect yourself and your affairs from his weakness.

Love need not be damaged. You cannot control another's acts, but you can always control your own attitude. And, no matter what the other fellow does or doesn't do, THE CONDITION OF YOUR OWN HEART IS UP TO YOU.

Love's always an INSIDE job. Love is the true of all the great experiences in life. Our real life is lived in our own feelings. Love is what we make it. The one you love may be unworthy—but love itself is never unworthy. The one you love may never know of it. It may not be possible for your lives to mate—even meet. YET, IF YOU LOVE BRAVELY AND BEAUTIFULLY, YOUR HEART WILL BE THE RICHER EVERY HOUR FOR THAT OUTPOURING.

Dare to love! Dare to believe in love! Dare to give everything you have to love! And don't worry about the consequences. There may be unpleasant consequences, due to your own selfishness or stubbornness or stupidity. But there are never any unpleasant consequences to love itself. LOVE ALWAYS has a happy ending. Love always leads on and on to—MORE LOVE.

The Ease With Which Kindness Is Performed

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

THE Golden Rule needs to be amended. To the truth that we should do unto others as we would that they should do unto us, there ought to be added the urgent command, "And begin today." A great banker once wrote these words to me in a letter: "I am sure that if every one of us did every day some kind act to someone other than himself, the burden of the world would be lifted. That is my religion, and I try not to wait for others to begin."

It is such a little thing to do—one kind act each day. It takes so little to encourage happiness and create beauty in life; so little to awaken the angel in the soul. But someone must take the lead—why not be the one to break the ice and begin it?

But we are such queer folk, all of us. We are shy, so furtive, so ashamed of being thought of as mental, as if a show of feeling were fatal. It is so easy, so safe, to indulge in "small talk," the rattle of which breaks the silence we seem to be afraid of.

No doubt our small talk is useful, like pennies, to make a change of mood and topic; but it is surely tiresome at times. We are like shell fish, proud of our shell, but ashamed to let it be known there is a living, longing, lonely spirit within us.

How seldom, in these days, do we have a really good thought and the great, beautiful, worthwhile things of life. Yet behind the masks we put on, all of us are hungry for a fellowship deeper than our endless chatter and chit-chat. Why not be the one to begin?

"My God! I've been so dumb, but I loved you—oh didn't you know," sobbed an son at the bedside of his mother as she passed away. But it was too late. A soft, ineffable homeward sigh, and she was gone.

Shy with our words, we are equally timid in doing acts of kindness, even on the sly. Not so much by lack of intent as by want of courage, and the fear that we may intrude or bungle it.

Let us here quietly resolve to be a little kinder than is necessary, and begin today to master the first art of it!

Girls Who B At Too Ear Being Thou

By

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I AM a girl 16 years old junior in high school. I never had a date with my chums all think this isn't there any other 16-year-olds who haven't started dates? Is it permissible, Mrs. Carr, for a girl to smoke a cigarette in a restaurant, if the folks who older and approve of it? JUST WONDER!

I dare say there are girls generation who have been before they are 16 to both dates. But probably you will for lost time when you up so I should not worry about girls who "date" too young. They are given credit for years, so that someone sweetly, after they have been a season or two, "Why, it has been going out a long time, must be getting along in now."

To the second question, answer that, if your mother is with you at the restaurant, and approve of your doing it, it may be all right. But trust too much to other people's standards about things. Even if older friends approve, they would hesitate to know it. Smoking is "sin," certainly, but it doesn't do much harm. The heaviest of young girls or boys are trying to store up health one thing, they are seldom about it. Get your "rose" complexion first, before you on cigarettes.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
ERHAPS you think I am asking you useless questions. They are serious to me. 5 feet 2 inches and weigh 115 weight hardly varies at all. You think I am too fat? I am dark with brown eyes, brown hair and my skin is. Could I wear wine color? TOO

According to the weight have, you are at least 20 overweight. If you wish reduced, send me self-addressed stamped envelope. If, with your wine color, a touch of velvet, silver or you will make it more becoming.

A Contract Bridge Hand Advice From Martha Carr

Girls Who Begin to Have Dates At Too Early an Age Later Risk Being Thought Older Than Is True

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I AM a girl 16 years old and a junior in high school. I have never had a date with a boy and my chums all think this is so odd. I have had other 16-year-olds in the world who haven't started having dates.

Is it permissible, Mrs. Carr, for a girl to smoke a cigarette in a restaurant if the folks with her are older and approve of it?
JUST WONDERING.

I date say there are girls in this generation who have been too busy before they are 16 to bother with dates. But probably you will make up for lost time when you do start, and so I should not worry about it. The girl who "date" too young are likely to be given credit for added years so that someone will say, "Why, that girl has been going out a long time. She must be getting along in years."

To the second question I will answer that, if your mother and father are with you at the restaurant and approve of your smoking there, it may be all right. But do not trust too much to other people's standards about these things. Even if older friends disapprove, they would hesitate to let you know it. Smoking isn't the best, certainly, that some think it does not help the health and nerves of young girls or boys who are trying to store up health. For me, I think, they are seldom moderate about it. Get your "rose-bloom" complexion first, before you begin cigarettes.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
PLEASE tell me if I am asking you useless questions, but they are serious to me. I am 16 years old and weigh 142. I don't think I am too fat?
I am dark with brown eyes, dark brown hair and my skin is dark. Can I wear wine color?
TOO FAT.

According to the weight scale I have you are at least 20 pounds overweight. Eat fewer sweets and pastries. If you wish reducing expenses send me self-addressed and stamped envelope.
If with your wine color, you use a touch of velvet, silver or white, you will make it more becoming.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I AM a man 18 years old and asking you in advance, what I should give my girl friend, whom I met about four months ago, for Christmas. I like her very much but don't know what would be proper to give her. TRULY.

I have so many inquiries of this kind just before Christmas time that I am compiling a list of adaptable and up-to-date gifts for young men and young women to send at Christmas. Write me about Dec. 1 send me a self-addressed and stamped envelope in which I may mail you the list, if you care for it. I am not writing a list, remember to state the following:
Age, financial circumstances of the boy or girl, about the amount you can afford to give; whether the one for whom you intend the gift lives in the city or in the country; the type of person (young man or woman); and, above all, do a little detective work as to the taste and type of the person to whom you are to send this gift.
And do not forget that length of time and closeness of relationship will have much to do with your selection. Write as soon after December the first, as you can.

Dear Martha Carr:
I ALWAYS have been a book lover, especially of the historical stories of civilization of people of this country and foreign lands. Quite recently I received a catalogue from a publishing house advertising a line of books which tell of the practices of different societies. Some of these books tell about flagellation. They gave some detail. Is it true, Mrs. Carr, that there are such practices in the civilized world? Is it true that people on private yachts and those who pay for entertainment, will hire people to practice this flagellation?
BOOKIE BOB.

There is an order of flagellants, and has been an order of that kind for many years, considered usually fanatics who believe, not only in self-denial for the benefit of their souls, but feel they must punish themselves for their sins. I am sure in your library there you will find books about this and, of course, in Chicago, you can find information. Any encyclopedia will give you all the facts you need to know.
I do not know the line of books you mention, but, judging from some of the titles, I believe you would be wasting much time reading them, that might serve you better in reading of real history.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

reverses, seems far more important to the man than the girl. This appears to us as camouflaged pride. Women with all their seeming love of luxury are in reality more democratic and plebeian in their tastes and desires than men. What is the opinion of others?
PERPLEXED RED HEAD.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
SOMETIME ago I wrote you asking your advice on a subject which has very much to do with my happiness in the future. I am a constant reader of the column and I know that your advice will be sound.
A DISGUSTED SISTER-IN-LAW.

I could not, very well, use your letter in the column. If you will write me again, giving me some details, and sending stamped envelope for reply, I shall be glad to try to help you.

Closely Played Bridge Game After Sign-Off

By P. Hal Sims

GOFFREY MOTT-SMITH has the well-deserved reputation of playing a hand just as closely when the opponents have signed off a cold game contract at one no trump as when they are actually playing the hands in a game bid. The following collection of cards, played in a recent duplicate tournament in New York City, illustrates my point:

NORTH	WEST	EAST	SOUTH
AKQ	AKQ	AKQ	AKQ
A10xx	A10xx	A10xx	A10xx
Ax	Ax	Ax	Ax
Qxxx	Qxxx	Qxxx	Qxxx

West dealt, and bid one club. In one of giving one over are in diamonds. East made the antiquated denial of a trick-and-a-half bid of one no trump, and subsequently passed West's bid of two hearts. The bidding should have gone: one club; one diamond; one heart; two hearts; three hearts. Having very little opposition bidding to guide him, Mr. Mott-Smith, North, made the noncommittal opening of the eight of diamonds. Dummy's queen was covered by South's king, and the declarer won with the ace. Three rounds of spades were played, on which West got rid of two of East's clubs; and then a small club was led toward the jack. Mr. Mott-Smith went in with the ace. His partner signaled with the nine-spot, but he disregarded the signal, and made the strange play of laying down the jack of spades. The declarer ruffed in his own hand, discarding a diamond from dummy. A club was ruffed in dummy, the jack of diamonds played, and a small diamond trumped. On the lead of the declarer's last club, when dummy was down to two hearts and one diamond, Mr. Mott-Smith was forced to under-ruff dummy. West over-ruffed with the queen, playing North for the king. Therefore, he made only four hearts.

Mr. Mott-Smith afterward explained that his lead of the jack of spades giving the declarer a ruff and a discard, was the only play which might hold the contract to four. If he continues clubs, the diamond break will become apparent immediately, and West can afford to test out the lead situation. But if West is down to two trumps in either hand, he cannot afford to play hearts himself, but must continue the cross-ruff.

TOMORROW'S HAND

AKQ	AKQ	AKQ	AKQ
A10xx	A10xx	A10xx	A10xx
Ax	Ax	Ax	Ax
Qxxx	Qxxx	Qxxx	Qxxx

Of course you and I realize that South cannot make three no trumps. Nevertheless, despite the fact that four spades is possible, although not probable, he should play the hand at a no trump contract. Have patience, my children. All is revealed tomorrow.

Unusual Swimmers Club
Soap as an Antiseptic

The Most Exclusive Club in St. Louis

Francis M. Dunford, Director of the Polio Swimming Club.

Polio victims enjoying a romp in the Y. M. C. A. Pool.

Nancy Jo Haas, 4 years old, and Earl Wangler, 8, youngest members of the Club.

EVERY Sunday morning at 10 o'clock 35 cripples lay aside their crutches, don bathing suits and romp for two hours in the pool at the Y. M. C. A. All of the 35—men, women and children—are victims of Poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis). They call themselves the Polio Swimming Club and Francis M. Dunford, himself a polio victim, is director of the group. Local swimming instructors and physiotherapists have volunteered their services for the two-hour period on Sunday and during this time the physically handicapped members of the club are taught to swim and are put through directed exercises in the water to develop lagging muscles and ligaments.

Modeled after the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, endowed by President Roosevelt, the Polio Club is less than a year old. Temperature of the water in the pool is raised to about 90 degrees for the class and the equipment, patterned after the Warm Springs equipment, is portable. Between swims, the members are placed on underwater tables and given exercises and muscle training designed to bring into action muscles long in disuse, and also other exercises designed to promote their general health.

"At the time President Roosevelt organized the Warm Springs colony," said Dunford, "he expressed a hope that the venture would be duplicated in other parts of the United States, until facilities are provided for the treatment of the 300,000 or more men, women, and children who are crippled by the disease. With this in mind, we, who have been stricken as the President was by infantile paralysis, organized the Polio Club here. Several of us are 'alumni' of Warm Springs and have attempted to model our club as nearly as possible after that organization. Of course, our undertaking is on a small scale, but we hope eventually to have a pool of our own. Of course, under present conditions we cannot care for all the victims in and around St. Louis, but we are at least making a start.

certificate is required of each member, stating that the applicant is in good health and has no communicable disease. If he has any heart, lung, kidney, skin or other involvement which would make it inadvisable to swim, we cannot admit him to the club. Also the doctor's certificate must state that swimming would benefit his patient."

THE Polio Club is a non-profit organization. No one connected with the venture receives any pay. Members are charged 40 cents a swim, 35 cents of which goes to the Y. M. C. A. for maintenance of the pool and 5 cents to the club for incidental expenses. Exercises and swimming are taught to the group by a corps of experienced swimming instructors working under the close supervision of the majority of our members and swimming is the form of exercise considered most beneficial in the treatment of Poliomyelitis. "But even as important as the physical benefits the Polios derive from their activities at the club, is the general improvement of their mental condition. Some of them spend all their time in wheel chairs, have to be lifted and carried around. Some know very few people outside their own family, but here at the Polio Club on Sunday mornings, they meet outsiders and life takes on added interest."

That life did indeed take an added interest, was evidenced by the change in the expressions on their faces. Coming in the door with braces, wheel chairs, crutches and other paraphernalia, very few smiles were to be seen. But in the sympathetic atmosphere of the club, cares were soon forgotten, and by the time swimming suits were on and the pool began to fill up, the happy shouts and laughter made it necessary for the director to blow a whistle to reduce the noise to a point where announcements could be made.

Besides the two-hour swimming period on Sundays, the club provides other recreation for the members. Bridge parties, dinners, picnics and outings are arranged to furnish amusement designed to keep the Polios in a happy frame of mind.

Ages of the members vary from four years old to the well along in life and their handicaps range from those with only very slight effects remaining from infantile paralysis, to those with entire paralysis of legs, arms, or both. But all, no matter what degree of handicap, are able to move about in the water to some extent, without braces or crutches, and many of them have become excellent swimmers.

THIS last Sunday was graduation day and diplomas were awarded. For those who had mastered two strokes a TS degree was given. For those who mastered three strokes and able to swim 50 yards, an MS degree was awarded. Five TS degrees and eight MS degrees were given at Sunday's ceremony.

"Things like these little graduation ceremonies are high spots in the lives of a lot of these people," explained Dunford. "You have no idea to what extent they are virtually shut-in during at least six days of the week. And their mental condition has so much to do with the physical health. Imagine the thrill of walking for the first time in 25 or 30 years—that's what happened here last Sunday. A woman who had never walked, tried it in the water and actually took about 10 steps. Of course, she couldn't walk out of the water, but she got the thrill of her life. And last summer one of the boys left his crutches behind at a picnic. Of course, he wasn't as handicapped as the woman who had never walked, but it just goes to show how a healthy mental attitude toward life does help them. And things like the Polio Club give them new determination—and believe me, many of them had resigned themselves to the attitude of 'I give up.'"

Sweet Potato Patties
Two cups mashed sweet potatoes.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-quarter teaspoon pepper.
One egg yolk.
One tablespoon butter, melted.
One-third cup flour.
Four tablespoons fat.
Mix potatoes, seasonings, yolk and butter. Shape into cakes one-half inch thick. Roll in flour. Melt fat in frying pan, add and quickly brown cakes.

A little bacon fat will add flavor to spinach.

Mushroom Gravy
Four tablespoons meat drippings.
One cup sliced mushrooms.
Two tablespoons flour.
One and one-half cups milk.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-quarter teaspoon paprika.
One-quarter teaspoon onion salt.
One-quarter teaspoon celery salt.
Melt drippings in frying pan; when hot add and brown mushrooms. This will require about five minutes. Add flour, mix until browned. Add rest of ingredients, cook until creamy. Serve poured over meat.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN.

WEDNESDAY evening when Fran was waiting for her bus to go home, she saw Ward's car down the street in the lane of traffic that would pass directly in front of her. First a small coupe, then a touring car, then the roadster with Ward leaning back, waiting for the signal to change, one hand carelessly on the wheel, the other lifting a cigarette to his mouth. The car was trembling with the force of its idling motor. And the girl was trembling, too, with the hope that he might look her way, invite her into the car. So long since she had seen him—a week, but the week was so endless. The longest she had ever spent.

The signal changed and the small coupe started ahead. Now the touring car was before Fran. Now the dark blue roadster! He had to see her!

He did look, she saw her, and she started look of recognition came into his eyes, and he was nodding. Then the dark blue car was gliding past, and she saw his gray felt hat through the rear window, and the license plate blurry yellow. He might stop yet—on the other side of the street. . . . But he didn't, and soon the car was out of sight, and Fran was stumbling up onto the bus, her eyes filled with tears, and a weight like lead in her chest. He had looked at her, he had seen her, he had nodded, but he hadn't invited her to ride home. . . . Was it imagination or was it true that his nod seemed cold, rather unfriendly? She didn't know, she couldn't tell, but she knew that she was desperately unhappy.

The bus was crowded, and she was standing inside hanging onto a metal bar above her head, but she hardly knew she was standing. She hardly realized she was in the bus, going home. The bus stopped every two blocks, and people got up and went out to the back platform, but she didn't see them. She didn't even see the vacant seat near her until a woman pulled at her sleeve, and called her attention to it. "I'm getting off at Rider street," the girl next to her said. "I wonder if you could tell me if it's close?"

Rider street—Fran came to herself with a start and glanced out the window. "Two more stops," she replied, and then was sure that if the girl hadn't spoken, she would have missed her stop entirely, and landed at the end of the bus line. At Rider she followed the girl off, and waited for the traffic to change on Tanner. Another bus, a hopeless evening—more hopeless than any of the others had been because she had seen Ward. Nina was quite right. She would have to forget him. It was the only thing to do—after tonight.

A GAIN she was on the corner—and again the dark blue roadster was passing, and Ward was nodding, and then going on. Not even smiling. He hadn't smiled, had he? No, he hadn't. Only nodding. It would have been enough for him to have stopped the car for an instant, and opened the door for her. If he had wanted to, he would have, but he didn't want to. . . . She crossed Tanner and walked slowly the two blocks to the Howard.

"He didn't want to drive me home"—she kept saying to herself. "He didn't want to. He doesn't want to see me any more. He's made that very, very clear."

There were some cars parked in front of the Howard. Neither did she hear an auto horn honking as she turned to the door.

"Fran! Fran!"

Startled, she looked around, one hand on the door to push it open. The voice was familiar. It sounded like Ward's. It was Ward and he was coming toward her from the dark blue roadster.

"Fran—I've been waiting for you. I've got something to tell you. won't you get in the car and take a little ride?" His face seemed very white in the twilight, and his voice was vibrant with emotion.

The girl felt his arm on hers drawing her to the car, helping her into the seat. She heard him slam the door, saw him in a weaving daze go around the car and get in on his side. The sound of the engine starting was like the roar and pounding of her heart.

"You're going to think I'm an awful fool, Fran," he was saying, and his words came to her as if they were being spoken from a great distance. "And I am a fool, and maybe you're going to laugh at me, but I hope not. Promise me you won't!"

She couldn't answer just then, because her voice would have broken, but she shook her head. Laugh at Ward! She wanted to read her head on his shoulder and cry and cry. . . .

TODAY'S PATTERN

Tailored Frock

DO YOU look and look for house frocks which combine slenderizing lines with comfortable cut? Then you should need no verbiage in order to appreciate the chic of this cleverly tailored frock. Its bodice closes in a flattering surplice line, its skirt is hung upon a nicely pointed yoke—its sleeves with their pointed shoulders are as smart as they are comfortable. And over and above all, there are no fussy little extra details to catch and tear as you do your work. Make the frock with a pretty buttoned-on cover of a contrasting color, or if you prefer, omit it—the dress is just as smart either way.

Pattern 1928 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 3½ yards 36-inch fabric and ½ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Problems of Social Usage When Dining

The Correct Way to Hold a Stemmed Glass—Buffet Suppers.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: I WAS taught when a child that there was a condiment should be put at one side of the plate, never on the food it accompanies. My children tell me I am all wrong and that it is just as proper to put gravy, high on the meat or potatoes, and condiments, too. Will you settle the argument?

Answer: Gravy is usually poured on the meat and first two fingers on the side of whatever it accompanies. There was a strict rule (which was handed in hand with the rule that allowed no child to leave a morsel of food uneaten) which absolutely forbade children to put gravy in the middle of mashed potatoes or over a piece of meat laid purposely on the plate. This preparing a foundation for gravy or condiment is probably considered a breach of good manners still, but I can't see any great objection, unless too conspicuously or immoderately done.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct to hold a stemmed glass by the stem or by clasping the bowl? Answer: Liqueur glasses and possibly sherry glasses are held by the stem. A water goblet is held with thumb and first two fingers on the base of the bowl supporting it and the two remaining fingers partly around the upper part of the stem. The extremes to avoid are the bowl clasped, little finger curled, and stem waving free. Or on the other hand, a wine glass stem slipped in three fingers and last two ones curled high. In other words, a mincing, affected gesture is always in worst taste.

My dear Mrs. Post: Does the guest of honor at a buffet supper lead the way to the table or is it right for any one of the guests to go first? Answer: A buffet supper is much too informal to have any one person go first. The guest of honor might be given the special attention of having the host bring food to her, and in fact it should be the duty of all men to notice whether she is being looked after.

My dear Mrs. Post: Is it considered proper to pick up a large bouillon cup by the handle to drink from it, or should a large cup be left on the table? If the cup may be taken up, should the two handles be used because of its size? Answer: It is proper to drink from it and either one or both handles are used, as you prefer. (Copyright, 1934.)

Dessert: Steamed sun-dried apricots and cream.

Coffee with cream and sugar may be added to any starch meal. Coffee with cream and no sugar may be added to a protein or alkaline forming meal.

Corn Pone
One and one-third cups corn meal.
Two-thirds cup flour.
Four teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One egg.
Four tablespoons sugar.
One cup milk.
Three tablespoons fat, melted.
Mix ingredients and beat well.
Pour into greased shallow pan.
Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.
Cut in squares and serve with butter.

On Casters
Be sure the small table in your kitchen is on rollers so that it may be rolled just where it is most convenient for the housewife to have it. It proves a wonderful step saver when washing and drying dishes by oneself.

Brief Outlines Of the Movies For the Week

George M. Cohan Appears in Own Play—Dick Powell in Musical Romance.

GEORGE M. COHAN appears on the screen in his own play, "The Gambler," which opened at the Fox Tuesday. The other picture on the program is "That's Gratitude," from the New York stage comedy, also acted by its author, Frank Craven. Cohan's role is that of a New York gambler, whose daughter elopes with a shipboard acquaintance and is murdered. The lover is accused of the crime, tried and acquitted. Dissatisfied with the way the police and the District Attorney have handled the case, the gambler becomes his own detective. The supporting cast includes Wynne Gibson, Dorothy Burgess, Ted Newton, Walter Gilbert, Percy Ames and Cora Witherspoon. "That's Gratitude" pokes fun at middle-class American family life.

WILLIAM POWELL and Myrna Loy are co-starred again in "Evelyn Prentice," opening at Loew's State today. "Evelyn Prentice," adapted from the novel of W. E. Woodward, deals with the domestic life of a brilliant criminal lawyer whose business affairs keep him constantly away from his wife and baby. On the eve of a second honeymoon to Europe, the wife is emmeshed in a scandalous murder case, in which her lawyer-husband is counsel for the defense. The supporting cast includes Anna Merkel, little Cora Sue Collins, Isabel Jewell, Edward Brophy and Henry Wadsworth.

"JEALOUSY," a story of the prize ring, with Nancy Carroll and George Murphy, and a second picture, "Cheating Cheaters," with two gangs of jewel thieves trying to outwit each other, come to the Missouri today. Murphy, in "Jealousy," plays the part of a pugilist in love with Miss Carroll. He finds her with her employer and is jealous, kills the man. He allows the girl to take the blame until, conscience-stricken, he surrenders and is convicted of the deed. The surprise climax ends the story.

DICK POWELL, Ruby Keeler and Pat O'Brien share starring honors in "Flirtation Walk," musical romance opening Saturday at the Schubert Theater. The picture centers about gay, romantic life at West Point. Powell sings new songs by the popular song-writer, Dick Powell. The West Point graduation ceremonies, in which officers and cadets participate; the parade grounds, the lovers' promenade—"Flirtation Walk" with its kissing rack, all come in as a part of the story's plot. The cast also includes: Cheating Cheaters, William, Glen Boles, John Eldridge, Henry O'Neill and John Arledge.

"THE WHITE PARADE," a story of student nurses in a large metropolitan hospital, will remain at the Ambassador Theater for another week. In the cast are Loretta Young, John Boles, Jane Darwell, Astrid Allwyn and others. "College Rhythm," the Orpheum picture, with Joe Penner, Jackie Oakie, Larry Ross, Lyda Roberti and Helen Mack, is also being held another week. It is a musical show which starts on a football field, goes into a department store and returns to football.

ATTRACTIVE CROCHET SET

CROCHETED ACCESSORIES
PATTERN 877

THIS gilet (it is also called a plastron) combines the height of style with a decidedly practical note. It greatly enhances a dress—changes its entire appearance. It is done in a simple but effective open stitch that is a decoration in itself. The collar is in single crochet as is the plain hat. The crown of this can be draped in various ways—you can have the popular Tyrolean effect or a more conservative arrangement, as you please. This set was made in old gold—a color lovely with brown, black, green or henna. But use any color and have the pleasure of knowing you are dressed just right. This set is available only in this pattern.

Pattern 877 comes to you with detailed directions for making the set shown; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; material requirements and color suggestions.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Rusted Locks

If the key works jerkily in the closet door, dip it in machine oil and then place in the lock and unlock several times. It will soon work smoothly. An obstinate bolt can be treated in the same way; just pour a little oil along the bolt and then work it back and forth a few times.

Macedoine Salad.

One cup cooked diced potatoes, one cup cooked diced carrots, one-half cup shredded cooked string beans, one-half cup cooked diced peas, one-half cup cooked peas. Mix with one-half cup French dressing or boiled dressing. Garnish with parsley and serve on a bed of crisp lettuce.

Cleaner Linoleum

A heavy rug at the bottom of the cellar steps is an essential article if you wish to keep the kitchen linoleum clean. All soot from the cellar can be scraped off one's shoes before starting up the stairs.

Unsightly Complexions muddy-looking, blotchy and red—relieved and improved with safe, medicated Resinol.

Don't fool with a CHEST COLD

New scientific principle . . .

cool HEAT

A new way . . . effective and pleasant . . . to treat a chest congestion. Rub in Minit-Rub promptly. Instantly grateful heat begins to stimulate the flow of blood and get after the congestion. It gets hotter and hotter. And then, just as you're ready to say: "Wow, this is hot!" . . . you'll feel a refreshing, comforting coolness. And all the time Minit-Rub's wonderful heat is doing its good work way down deep, your skin stays pleasantly comfortable!

Minit-Rub is just as wonderful as it seems. It is so amazingly effective because it utilizes the principle of "cool-heat." Simply rub it in for quick relief if your back aches, or your joints pain, or you've got a sprain or strain of any sort. It's greaseless, stainless, and vanishing, too. You can get it at the druggist's. Just ask for Minit-Rub, the new balm that uses the principle of "cool-heat." 35c and 60c.

JUST RUB IN MINIT-RUB
... it's good for so many things

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

Friday, November 23.

DON'T believe everything you think, especially today, particularly in money matters and relations with those in money professions, such as bankers, brokers, cashiers, et al. Better in later hours for most purposes and people.

Have a Definite Objective.

From now till the end of July next year, will be a really excellent time for those born Dec. 22-31, inclusive, to get things done in a big way, with resultant benefits in many ways. It will be a good period for them to use in constructive changes for the better, if they can see calmly through to the end of the proposition. Inner power is apt to be abundant, together with more than the usual inventory of take-chances, so don't just dash about thoughtlessly; use your steam for getting to some definite objective. WHEN General Smeds Butler drops a spoon into a dish you can bet it's hot.

Old Gimlet Eye just unloaded the Wall Street putsch on us and told a tale that would make Aladdin crack his lamp and drink the oil.

The capitalist army is getting ready to wheel on Washington. The brokers are drilling in their limousines four abreast.

Smeds was to be the man on the white horse, the jockey on the albino mule and the rider on the faded zebra. With the General's help the putschers figured they could turn the Government over as neatly as a waffle in the morning.

The General spurned the offer and three million dollars.

We would spurn that one ourselves. Gold cannot buy us. Especially during the embargo.

JAPAN INCREASES MILITARY BUDGET TO NEW HIGH LEVEL

$290,000,000. Allotted Army and Navy for 9 Pct. More Than rent Appropriation.

FINANCE MINISTER LOSES LONG FIGHT

Yields to Arguments of eminent Ship-Builders Race and "Menace" Soviet Russia.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Nov. 23. — The Cabinet today granted the Army and the most money Japan has allotted for military use.
More than one billion yen ($290,000,000) will go for national defense in one year. This is 9 per cent of the total budget of 3,200,000,000 yen (approximately $800,000,000) and a 9 per cent increase over the current appropriation.
The cabinet, which had been in session for 14 hours, approved figures this morning, ending long "battles of the budget."
Army and Navy had carried campaign of propaganda for larger and better-equipped forces.
Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, Minister of War, threatened to resign if demands were not met.
Admiral Mineo Osami, Minister of the Navy, told the Cabinet "international situation must be considered."

Military Arguments.
The Navy had contended it be built up to the limits of the don treaty by the end of 1936 in order to be strategically placed a building race which might break down in present negotiations.
War office statements had the Army should be prepared any eventualities on the coast and that Soviet Russia still needed Japanese interests.

These arguments in the end came the resistance of Sanjuro, Minister of Finance, who tempted in vain to keep the defense appropriations within the limits of the current budget.
Items in the budget are fixed by minor changes may be made in future meetings.
The deficit estimate is 700,000 yen (about $217,500,000) which bonds must be issued.
How Money Was Allotted.
The Navy was given about 600,000 and the Army $142,000. The Navy had demanded $19,000 for new ships, $22,000,000 for maintenance, $12,000,000 for modernization of warships, $10,000,000 for expansion and maintenance of air force, and $4,000,000 for expansion of the Army.
Major Army requests were $29,000,000 for new weapons and munitions and $24,000,000 for expansion of the air force.

In a broadcast to patriotic nations, Koki Hirota, Foreign Minister, referred today to "limitations imposed by Washington and London" and said Japan would not make concessions because of them.
Japan, he said, would not agree to "Let Britain and America, at present maintaining large armaments, set the pace and make considerable demands for as large a navy as the United States or Great Britain, and even peace would be assured."

U.S., BRITAIN REJECT JAPANESE DEMANDS

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. — The United States and Great Britain today rejected the preliminary naval conference agreed between themselves to insist on the continuance of the principles of the Washington Treaty of 1922.
The representatives of the United States and Great Britain met in London and decided to ask the Japanese to explain the reasons for their explanation of Japanese demands for as large a navy as the United States or Great Britain.

Both the Anglo-Saxon delegates made it clear that they had no intention whatsoever of granting Japan the tonnage equality it demands.
Terms of 1922 Treaty.
Under the 1922 Treaty, the United States and Great Britain agreed that the first two nations should have navies equally large while Japan's navy could be 60 per cent as large as either of the others. This ratio is the fundamental principle of the Washington treaty and which the Japanese object to.
Following the American-French agreement, Japan's navy was limited to 60 per cent of the United States navy.
